PUBLISHERS' FOREWORD

PHILIPPINE EDUCATION COMPANY, in presenting to the public the 1937-1938 edition of the Manila City Directory, now in its 35th year, wishes to express its sincere gratitude to the general public, and especially to the business community and government officials, for their cooperation in the work of compiling the publication, during the present year.

On the part of the Publishers, no effort has been or will be spared in the endeavor to make of the Directory not merely a book, but a public service.

As an indication of the service the Directory performs and the need for such a publication because of the constant change in the make-up of the community, it is of interest to note that from the Alphabetical List of Firm Names alone, which comprises some 9,465 entries, 750 names of corporations, companies, partnerships, professionals, etc., were dropped as having gone out of business, and 1,316 new entries were made. These figures do not include minor changes such as in staff personnel, addresses, etc. The figures last year were 904 and 1,092, respectively.

The total number of names in the Directory are approximately as follows:

Special Directories Section (government officials, army, navy, churches, schools and colleges, hospitals, clubs, etc.), 13,200, Alphabetical List of Firm Names, 10,131; Classified List of Firm Names, 9,745; Resident Section, 22,420; Baguio Section, 1,200 entries; a total of nearly 56,696 names.

The task of compiling the Directory each year may be estimated from the fact that the Publishers employ some twenty canvassers for four or five months, and some ten compilers and proof readers who work the year around. There is not a page in any one edition of the Directory that is the same as the page of the same number in the preceding edition. Not thousands, but hundreds of thousands of changes and corrections are made each year.

All of this effort is aimed at producing a Directory that truly directs. In spite of all this effort, however, errors may have crept in. The Publishers would consider it a great favor if such errors were called to their attention.

HOW TO USE THIS DIRECTORY

To get the maximum utility of such a volume as Manila City Directory it is necessary to know in general just what the book contains. The Directory is divided into four sections, familiarity with which will greatly facilitate finding desired information.

(1) Miscellaneous Section. This section contains a street directory, a postal and telegraph guide, duties on imports, values of coins, weights and measures, the commerce of the Philippines, a census section, a directory of United States, Insular, and Manila officials, a directory of consular representatives, a directory of boards of trade, clubs, churches and religious societies, hospitals and asylums, schools, colleges, and convents, masonic bodies, etc.

(2) Alphabetical List of Firm Names. This section contains the names of firms and professional persons in Manila arranged alphabetically. The names of the officials and most important employees are printed under each firm name.

(3) Classified List of Firm Names. This section contains firm names and addresses classified under nearly a thousand different trade headings, such as "Accountants and Auditors," "Brokers, General," "Dressmakers," "Hemp Dealers," "Sugar Machinery," "Insurance Companies, Fire," "Engineers, Consulting," etc.

(4) Alphabetical List of Local Residents. This section contains the names of more than twenty-two thousand Manila residents, and their occupations and addresses.

In looking for names in the Directory, it should be remembered that names which sound alike vary in spelling, as, for instance, Lopez and Llopis, Jimenez and Gimenez, Lacsamana and Laxamana, and Brown and Braun. These examples should show that one is not justified in concluding that a name is omitted because he cannot immediately find it. Names have been arranged alphabetically as they are usually given. Jose Abad Santos, for instance, will be found under the "A's" because the name is usually given as Abad Santos and not as Santos. Chinese names are not transposed, like names such as White, J. G. but are printed as they are pronounced, such as Dee C. Chuan. If one were to look for this name as Chuan, D. C., he would not find it.

Philippine Economic Conditions in 1936

By

J. BARLETT RICHARDS

American Trade Commissioner

GENERAL RÉSUMÉ

THE upward trend in Philippine business which became evident in 1935 was accentuated in 1936 and assumed some of the aspects of a boom. Export crops were generally good and, with the exception of tobacco, were in excellent demand in American and foreign markets. Prices reached higher levels than have been seen in recent years and the value of exports, including gold, was greater than in any year since 1929. Including some ₱42,000,000 for gold and approximately ₱6,000,000 for sugar benefit payments, which may be considered as equivalent to exports of sugar, the total value of exports was ₱320,896,000, or only about four percent below the record 1929 figure. Imports also increased but not in the same proportion, due to greater stability of prices on imported goods, and the favorable balance of trade reached a record figure. Prices of some imported goods increased rapidly toward the end of the year, indicating that there will be a considerable increase in the value of imports in 1937. Credit conditions were excellent.

Payment of ₱30,000,000 in sugar benefits in the later part of 1935 and early 1936, largely to a class of people who were already in good financial condition and who had no incentive to expand their productive capacity, due to sugar limitation, created a pool of funds available for investment, which found its way mainly into the mining share market. Share quotations advanced steadily and rapidly throughout most of the year, the opportunity for quick and spectacular profits attracting savings and even interesting some foreign capital. This activity was reflected in bank figures, with demand deposits nearly doubling in the course of the year, while overdrafts, loans and cash increased substantially. Debits to individual accounts, during the height of the speculative movement, averaged 150 percent greater than the previous year. There was a moderate reaction toward the end of the year. Note circulation increased markedly, due to sugar benefit and veterans bonus payments and to general prosperous conditions. In the exchange market, the peso was strong throughout the year, due to the heavy increase in exports, a reduction in remittances, particularly to Spain, and some imports of capital attracted by investment opportunities.

The commonwealth Government benefited from the marked increase in prosperity in its first full year, revenues in the General Fund increasing to about ₱76,675,000, compared with ₱65,000,000 in 1935. The 1936 figure includes ₱4,679,000, representing repayment by the Philippine National Bank of old advances. The increase in revenue was sufficient to cover augmented expenditures for national defense and economic measures incident to the establishment of the new Government, and a comfortable surplus was shown for the year. Actual expenditures in 1936 totaled about ₱71,000,000, including ₱9,990,000, representing a loan to the Manila Railroad Company to permit it to retire bonds. New revenue bills were passed by the National Assembly in its 1936 session to cover increased appropriations for the next year and a balance of revenues and appropriations for 1937, in the neighborhood of ₱80,000,000, appears probable. Receipts in the Special Funds for highways and port works in 1936 appear to have been at least 40 percent greater than in 1935, due partly to heavy imports of gasoline and lubricating oil during the end of the year in anticipation of a tax increase, partly to restoration of sugar exports to a normal basis and partly to general prosperity.

Government companies, with the exception of the railroads, showed increased profits in 1936 and promise to do even better in 1937. Several new Government companies were formed or authorized, including the National Rice and Corn Corporation, which was active in the stabilization of rice prices during the year. A National Power Corporation, organized at the end of the year, is empowered to issue bonds to finance the development and operation of hydroelectric projects. A National Produce Exchange, to facilitate trading in agricultural products, is in process of organization, and a committee has recommended the organization of a National Iron Company to study the possibility of developing iron ore deposits. The National Development Company was reorganized as a public company. The National Economic Council, organized at the beginning of 1936, was engaged during the year in the study of the industrial needs and possibilities of the country. A Radio Advisory Board was organized to study the possibility of nationalizing radio broadcasting and a Government service insurance system was authorized to replace the pension funds.

Sugar production was on a more nearly normal basis in the 1935-36 season, with a total production of about 952,000 short tons. The crop fell short of expectations due to unfavorable weather and was insufficient to cover an export quota of 952,000 tons and a domestic quota of 70,000 tons, making it necessary to draw on the previous year's reserve. The revenue to the sugar industry was, therefore, considerably greater than the crop figure would indicate, even taking into consideration the better prices in 1936. The 1934-35 crop totaled 691,000 tons but that included 100,000 tons of reserve, which brought in no revenue. Alcohol production totaled 59,384,854 proof liters, against 54,978,000 proof liters in the same period of 1935.

Production of other export crops was in general not much greater in quantity than in 1935 but substantially greater in value. Copra production was only slightly greater than in 1935 and exports were about 10 percent greater in volume but about 31 percent greater in value. Coconut oil exports were slightly reduced in quantity but increased about 13 percent in value. Copra cake and meal and desiccated coconut exports increased moderately in volume and value. Abaca production decreased about 14 percent, while exports decreased 8 percent in volume but increased about 50 percent in value. The small tobacco crop of 1935, together with disturbances in the principal foreign market and decreased demand in the second best market, led to a 32 percent decrease in the volume of leaf tobacco exports, with a more moderate decline in value. The tobacco crop harvested in 1936 was nearly normal, however. Cigar production was greatly reduced due to reduced demand from the United States. Lumber exports were apparently nearly 30 percent greater than in 1935 and with the domestic market also good, mills were working to capacity in the later part of the year and some of them double shifts. Production and exportation of embroideries, cordage and pearl buttons was somewhat lower than in 1935, but exports of hats improved.

Gold production increased about 37 percent and iron ore nearly 100 percent. Both are expected to show further increases in 1937 and there may be a moderate production of chromite, manganese and copper.

Production for the domestic market improved in most lines, with cement production showing an increase of about 14 percent due to greater building activity. Cigar and cigarette production for the domestic market increased only about 2 percent, doing very little toward making up for the decline in exports of cigars. The four manufacturers of canvas rubber-soled shoes increased their production nearly 25 percent and are now supplying practically the entire domestic requirements. Leather shoe factories also had a good year, sales increasing by about 20 percent. Manufacturers of soap, vegetable lard and margarine were busy throughout the year, in spite of losing most of their American market. Three new companies were organized to make soaps, perfumes and vegetable lard, but none of them had started business by the end of the year. A company was organized at the end of the year to can tuna fish.

There was a good market for most imported goods, although cotton textiles moved rather slowly during most of the year. Total imports of cotton textiles were substantially lower than in 1935, but the reduction was partly made up by heavier imports of rayon from Japan. Imports of cotton cloth from the United States continued to decline, in spite of the Japanese quota agreement. The demand for cotton textiles increased strongly in the latter part of the year but advancing local prices never quite caught up to American mill prices and the inability of American mills to offer prompt or near delivery was an added deterrent to business being placed. Japanese competition continued keen during most of the period, but was largely withdrawn at the end of the year, promising a much better market for American goods in the first half of 1937 if the mills are able to take advantage of the opportunity.

Mine and building activity brought about a marked increase in the sale of machinery and iron and steel products. Japanese competition in nails, wire and galvanized sheets increased during the year but was suddenly discontinued in December, when Japanese prices were increased as much as 50 percent. European prices on these products also rose sharply, leaving the field to the United States at the end of the year.

General prosperity created a good market for automobiles and accessories, flour and other foodstuffs, electrical equipment, paints, toiletries and a variety of other goods. Automobile sales were up 17 percent, truck sales up 15 percent and radio registrations up nearly 25 percent. Sales tax receipts indicate an increase of about 23 percent in total sales recorded.

Export cargoes were about 30 percent greater than in 1935 due mainly to increased sugar shipments but partly to logs, lumber, iron ore and other commodities. Inter-island freight and passenger movement was very good throughout the year.

Railroad carloadings did not increase in spite of the larger sugar crop, due to continued competition from other forms of transportation. Scheduled airplane services to Baguio and Paracale were increasingly popular. The Manila-Iloilo-Davao service was suspended, following the loss of a plane in July, the first serious accident to a transport plane since scheduled services were started in 1933. This service, as well as the Manila-Iloilo service, will be resumed early in 1937 with an amphibian plane of improved model.

Exports, not including gold, totaled ₱272,896,108, an increase of 45 percent over 1935. The increase was due partly to sugar exports, which were nearly twice as great as the previous year, but exports of abaca, coconut products, lumber and timber, hats, cutch and maguey were also substantially greater. Cordage, embroideries, pearl buttons, leaf tobacco and cigars were exported in reduced volume and value in 1936.

Exports to the United States were 43 percent greater than in 1935 and made up about 79 percent of total exports, against 80 percent the previous year. Exports of sugar to the United States nearly doubled, while exports of other products, notably coconut products, hemp and lumber, increased about 21 percent. Exports to Japan were 57 percent ahead of 1935, owing chiefly to increased shipments of iron ore, logs and hemp, and made up 6.15 percent of total exports, compared with 5.69 percent the year before. Exports to other Oriental Countries were slightly increased and exports to Europe were up 61 percent, due to heavier shipments of copra in the first half of the year and lumber throughout the year and to better prices for abaca and copra cake.

Imports totaled ₱202,252,349, or 18 percent greater than in 1935. They were slightly under the 1930 figure but much greater than in any more recent year. They increased in nearly every category, excepting cotton cloth and printed matter.

Imports from the United States were 13 percent better than in 1935 and made up 61 percent of total imports, compared with 64 percent in 1935 and an average of about 63 percent for the past ten years. Imports of cotton textiles from the United States were reduced but most other products, notably machinery, iron and steel products, electrical equipment, automobiles and tires, were received in greater volume. Imports from Japan increased nine percent and made up 13.12 percent of total imports, a slight decrease from the 14.23 percent in 1935. Rayon textiles and canned sardines account for a considerable part of the increase. There are indications that Japanese competition in this market will be less keen in the first months of 1937. Imports from all European countries were substantially increased, notably the Netherlands, Germany, Great Britain and Belgium. Heavy imports of flour from Australia and Canada increased the value of imports from those countries.

The visible balance of merchandise trade in 1936 was favorable in the amount of ₱70,643,757. If gold exports are included, the favorable balance is increased to about ₱112,000,000, and with sugar benefit payments considered as equivalent to sugar exports, to ₱118,000,000, a record figure. The favorable balance was due as usual to a large favorable balance with the United States, which amounted in 1936 to ₱92,056,129 plus ₱42,000,000 of gold. Trade with Oriental Countries showed an unfavorable balance of ₱28,689,578, of which ₱9,742,258 was due to trade with Japan. With Europe and the rest of the world, there was a favorable balance of ₱6,960,924. In 1935, the favorable balance with the United States was ₱41,138,073 (plus ₱26,000,000 of gold), the unfavorable balance with Oriental Countries ₱25,248,500 (of which ₱13,624,220 was from trade with Japan) and the favorable balance with Europe and the rest of the world only ₱1,152,489.

The National Assembly in its first regular session passed a record number of bills, including several revenue bills increasing existing taxes and creating new ones. Among the taxes increased were the inheritance tax, income tax, firearm license fees, tax on mining production tax on retail leaf tobacco dealers, taxes on gasoline and lubricating oil and motor vehicle license fees. New taxes include an amusement tax and a privilege tax on brokers and market vendors. The duty and excise tax on beer were increased, the former subject to American approval. A bill was passed giving the President of the Philippines the right to increase duties by a maximum of 400 percent and decrease them by a maximum of 75 percent, by executive order. This also awaits American approval. Provision was made for comprehensive census in 1937. A number of labor bills were passed, including a bill providing for a Court of Industrial Relations and one fixing a minimum wage for Government employees. Agriculture was the beneficiary of bills providing for warehouses for copra and tobacco, making appropriations for extermination of pests and diseases, creating a livestock promotion fund and a buntal fiber stablization fund and creating a National Produce Exchange to facilitate trading in agricultural products. A new comprehensive mining law and a Bureau of Mines were provided to regulate mining and a Securities Commission to protect investors. Aviation was encouraged by an appropriation for airmail contracts. An export tax was imposed on shells and an embargo on buntal fiber. The President was authorized to negotiate with the President of the United States toward the holding of an economic and trade conference. A bill creating a Government-owned National Merchandising Corporation to improve the competitive position of Filipino retailers failed of approval, as did a bill to impose a 10 percent tax on certain luxuries, including automobiles.

The volume of exports may be expected to increase moderately in 1937. Sugar exports will be the same as in 1936 and copra and abaca production is apparently not likely to increase very notably in the first half of 1937, although some increase may be expected in the last half of the year. Lumber and ore shipments will probably increase in 1937 and cigar and leaf tobacco exports will probably not go any lower. Prices are high at the end of the year and if they hold at anywhere near the present level the value of exports should show a substantial increase and, including gold, might even approach the 1929 figure. Prices of some of the principal imports increased rapidly at the end of the year. Imports in 1937 are likely to increase moderately in quantity and more substantially in value and the very heavy favorable balance shown in 1936 will probably be reduced. Government revenues and expenditures will probably be balanced at around ₱80,000,000. Banks may find increased use for their resources, with the higher prices of both imported and native products. Although the Philippines are dependent to a greater extent than most countries on conditions in foreign markets, making predictions difficult, it seems probable that the Islands will experience another year of prosperity in 1937. The results of the Trade Conference planned to be held in Washington during the year will exert a psychological influence.

FOREIGN TRADE

With value of imports and exports exceptionally heavy in December, according to the Bureau of Customs, in spite of the shortage of ships, Philippine foreign trade reached the highest total since 1929, with a balance of exports over imports larger than in any previous year. Exports, including gold, totaled about ₱314,000,000, and sugar benefit payments, equivalent to exportation of sugar, brought the figure to about ₱320,896,000, or only about ₱12,000,000 under the record established in 1929. The increase over 1935 exports, including gold and sugar benefit payments, is about 32 percent. Imports totaled ₱202,252,349, which is below the figure for 1930, but exceeds that for any subsequent year and exceeds 1935 by 18 percent. Excluding gold and benefit payments values of imports and exports in the past six years have been as follows:

	Imports	Exports	Balance
1931.....	₱198,357,437	₱207,944,148	₱ 9,586,711
1932.....	158,790,170	190,676,161	31,885,991
1933.....	134,722,926	211,542,105	76,819,179
1934.....	167,214,221	220,807,271	53,593,050
1935.....	171,047,699	188,491,360	17,443,661
1936.....	202,252,349	272,896,106	70,643,757

The visible balance of merchandise trade (excluding gold) in 1936 was favorable in the amount of ₱70,643,757. If gold is included, being exported as a Philippine product rather than as treasure, the balance is about ₱112,-000,000 (gold exports being estimated at about ₱42,000,000).

The favorable balance has been due every year since 1921 to a large favorable balance with the United States, which more than offsets an unfavorable balance with Oriental Countries. There is usually a moderate favorable balance with Europe. This was again the case in 1936, when trade with the United States showed a favorable balance of ₱92,056,129, plus about ₱42,000,000 of gold. Trade with Oriental countries showed an unfavorable balance of ₱28,689,578, of which ₱9,742,258 was due to trade with Japan. With Europe, there was a favorable balance of ₱6,470,986, with Canada an unfavorable balance of ₱1,115,986, and with other countries, mainly South American and African, a favorable balance of ₱1,605,924. In 1935, the favorable balance with the United States was ₱41,138,073 (plus ₱26,000,000 for gold), the unfavorable balance with Oriental Countries ₱25,248,500 (of which ₱13,624,220 was from trade with Japan) and the favorable balance with the rest of the world only ₱1,152,-489. The adverse trade balance with Japan was substantially reduced, exports to that country being ₱6,067,543 greater than in 1935, while imports from Japan increased only ₱2,185,581.

Exports to the United States (not including gold) were about 43 percent greater than in 1935, due largely to increased exports of sugar. Exports of products other than sugar to the United States were about 21 percent greater than in 1935, however, due to increased value of shipments of abaca and coconut products (chiefly owing to higher prices). About 79 percent of total exports went to the United States in 1936, against 80 percent the previous year.

Exports to Japan, the second largest market, were 57 percent ahead of 1935, owing chiefly to iron ore, logs and hemp, and made up 6.15 percent of total exports compared with 5.69 percent the year before. Exports to all other Oriental Countries, excepting Hong Kong, were moderately increased, but the aggregate made up only 2.17 percent of total exports, against three percent in 1935. Exports to Europe were up 61 percent, due to heavier purchases of copra in the first half of the year and lumber throughout the year, and to better prices for abaca and copra cake. All European countries participated in the increase excepting Spain, where political conditions brought about a practical cessation of imports from the Philippines in the latter part of the year. Exports to the Netherlands were nearly eight times as great as in 1935, and to Italy nearly ten times as great, both largely on account of copra. Exports to Germany doubled and to France, Belgium and Great Britain increased 50 to 75 percent. Sweden fell off slightly but Denmark became an important customer for the first time.

Sugar exports totaled ₱123,874,644 in 1936, or nearly double the ₱65,981,359 for 1935. Exports of abaca were reduced in quantity but up about 50 percent in value. Copra exports were up about 10 percent in quantity and 30 percent in value, while coconut oil shipments were slightly lower in quantity but up about 12 percent in value. Volume and value were greater in the case of copra cake and meal, desiccated coconut, lumber and timber, hats, cutch and maguey. Cordage, embroideries, buttons, leaf tobacco and cigars were exported in reduced volume and value in 1936.

Imports from the United States were about 13 percent over those for 1935 and made up 61 percent of total imports, compared with 64 percent in 1935. The average for the past ten years is 63 percent. Imports of cotton textiles from the United States were reduced but most other products, notably machinery, iron and steel products, electrical goods, automobiles and tires, were received in greater volume. Imports from the United States were heavy in December, in spite of a shortage of shipping, but the effects of that shortage may be expected to be felt in the first quarter of 1937, offsetting the otherwise improved competitive position of most American products.

Imports from Japan increased about nine percent and made up 13.12 percent of total imports, a decline from the 14.23 percent in 1935. Increased imports of rayon textiles, canned sardines, wire and nails, flour and a variety of other goods from Japan were noted, but imports of cotton textiles were reduced. There were indications that Japanese competition in this market might be less keen in the first part of 1937. Among other Oriental Countries, imports were notably increased from Australia (flour, butter, condensed milk), French Indo-China (rice), Siam (rice), and Hong Kong (cotton textiles). From British East Indies (sugar sacking), the increase was slight and from Netherland India (mainly oil), there was a slight reduction. Imports from China fell off slightly, in spite of considerably increased imports of cotton cloth in the first half of 1936. Aggregate imports from Oriental Countries, including Japan, were 24 percent greater than in 1935 and made up 25.42 percent of total imports, against 24.33 percent in 1935.

Imports from Belgium (iron and steel products) Germany (fertilizers, iron and steel, machinery, etc.), Great Britain (cotton goods, machinery, etc.) and the Netherlands (dairy products) increased notably, from France more moderately. From Switzerland (cotton cloth, milk), there was a slight decline. Aggregate imports from Europe were 36 percent greater than in 1935 and made up 11.69 percent of the total, against 10.14 percent in 1935.

Imports from Canada (flour, insulated wire, chemicals, paper) increased about 34 percent and made up 1.19 percent of the total, against 1.04 percent the previous year. From other countries, mainly South America and Africa, imports increased about 22 percent, due largely to canned beef from Uruguay.

Imports of wheat flour, automobile tires, electrical machinery and apparatus, machinery, iron and steel products, dairy products and paints were 30 to 45 percent greater than in 1935, according to Customs returns. Rice imports were up nearly 1,000 percent. Imports of most other goods were increased from 10 to 30 percent, major exceptions being cotton cloth, mineral oils and tobacco products. Imports of mineral oils were heavy in December and it is believed that actual imports for the year were at least 10 percent greater than in 1935. Sales of cigarettes were up 25 percent in 1936, imports were apparently increased about as much and it is difficult to find any explanation for the reduction indicated by the Customs figure.

The above export statistics do not include gold and silver, which were exported to the United States in 1935 and 1936 as follows:

	1935	1936
Bullion, ounces	655,171	950,093
Approx. value, pesos	24,767,116	34,733,853
Gold ore, kilos	841,308	4,160,741
Approx. value, pesos	761,239	3,323,785

The bullion averages 52 to 53 percent gold and 43 to 45 percent silver.

Gold exports appear to have been undervalued in the Customs statistics. Actually, they are believed to have amounted to at least ₱42,000,000.

SUGAR

The export quota for 1936 was originally placed tentatively at 965,000 short tons, raw value. It was later increased, but not much of the increase was used, due to the short crop and the fact that any excess over 952,000 tons commercial weight, roughly equivalent to about 966,000 tons raw value, was dutiable under the Tydings-McDuffie Law. The domestic quota was set at 70,000 tons and the reserve quota at 30,000 tons, commercial weight. Actual production in the 1935-36 season totaled only about 952,000 tons commercial weight, due to unfavorable weather conditions in 1935, and the reserve, which amounted to 99,000 tons at the beginning of the season, was reduced to less than 30,000 tons by the end of the crop year, October 31, 1936.

Actual production in the 1935-36 season was about 40 percent greater than the 691,000 tons in 1934-35. The monetary return was nearly double, however. The export price was considerably better, the monthly average being ₱8.35 per picul in 1936, against ₱7.30 in 1935, and the average domestic price was also better. More important was the fact that all of the 1935-36 crop was sold, in addition to which a large part of the previous year's reserve was sold at a good price. The 1934-35 crop included 100,000 tons of reserved which brought no revenue. The total value of exports in 1936 (including about ₱4,000,000 representing 1937 quota sugar) was ₱123,874,644, which compares with ₱65,981,359 in 1935 and ₱130,909,161 in 1934. Benefit payments, equivalent to exports, totaled ₱24.-

931,112 in the full year 1935 and ₱5,788,198 in 1936.

Total volume of exports in the calendar year was 508,974 long tons in 1935 and 899,282 long tons in 1936, according to records of the Philippine Sugar Association. This included 56,353 tons of refined in the former year and 46,605 tons in the latter.

Export quota sugar prices were firm throughout the first half of the year, during which most of the crop was sold. Starting the year at ₱7.50 per picul, the price rose to ₱9.15 at the beginning of May, falling gradually to around ₱8.00 at the end of the year. Domestic sugar quotations were slightly over export quotations at the beginning of the year, when the centrals were milling only for export, but during most of the year they ran a little behind. They were steady throughout the year at ₱8.00 to ₱8.20. New crop export quota sugar was first quoted at ₱8.00 in October.

For 1937, an export quota of 952,000 short tons, commercial weight, of duty-free sugar has been allocated on the basis of the mill and planter coefficients set for last year. The Jones-Costigan quota is considerably larger, but no arrangement for the allocation of the dutiable quota will be made prior to August, when it may be better determined whether exportation of dutiable sugar will be practicable. The probability of shipment of dutiable sugar to the continental United States depends on the relation between profit on duty-paid sugar and the speculative price for reserve sugar held in the Philippines.

The domestic sugar quota for 1937 is set at 90,985 short tons, commercial weight, and the reserve at 58,523 short tons. In addition, 6,000 to 10,000 tons, representing the difference between the duty-free export quota and the Jones-Costigan quota, may be milled as a special reserve for potential exportation. This amount is uncertain, due to the varying margin between commercial weight and raw value. The new crop appears sufficient to fill all these quotas, with the exception that the reserve quota may not be entirely filled in Central Luzon. The total amount of sugar milled from the 1936-37 crop will, therefore, be close to 1,1000,000 short tons, commercial weight, or nearly 150,000 tons more than last year. Much of the increase will not produce revenue, however, and the actual revenue from sugar will probably be no greater than in 1936, including sales of reserve and benefit payments in that year.

According to Domestic Sugar Administrator Vargas, about 15,000 short tons of the 1935-36 crop remained at the end of 1936 to meet the domestic demand. Since the 1936 domestic quota was only 70,000 short tons, the increase of nearly 21,000 tons in the domestic quota for 1937 should be ample to meet any increase in demand. It is hoped, however, that increased prosperity and lower sugar prices may encourage greater domestic consumption.

Molasses and alcohol production were increased in 1936, due to increased grinding of cane. Molasses exports were about the same as in 1935, when they totaled 45,000 tons. Production of distilled spirits in the first eleven months of 1936 totaled 59,384,854 proof liters, compared with 54,978,331 proof liters in the same period of 1935. Part of this was disposed of as distilled spirits, as follows:

	Proof Liters
	1935	1936
Produced	54,978,331	59,384,854
Removed for export	425,326	1,092,115
Removed for domestic consumption	4,307,965	4,835,391
Sold to the U. S. Army and Navy	45,305	59,375

The balance was sold as denatured alcohol, as follows:

Removed locally for industrial purposes	3,900,640	3,700,019
Exported for industrial purposes	.....	.....
Removed locally for motive power purposes	47,812,005	51,563,240

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration in the Philippines was finally liquidated about the middle of 1936, after making benefit payments totaling ₱30,719,000 as compensation for the limitation of production from the 1934-35 crop.

The contract freight rate for sugar shipments to the Atlantic Coast of the United States was set at $8.00 per ton for the year beginning October 1, 1936. It became apparent before the end of the year, however, that it was not to the advantage of the ship operators to make space available at that rate, and sugar exporters were forced to charter ships at higher rates, $10.50 to $12.00 a ton, to handle a considerable proportion of their shipments. This forced them to reduce their quotations for sugar somewhat in the latter part of December.

COCONUT PRODUCTS

Coconut products again made up the second biggest export group, as in every year since 1928. Exports increased moderately in volume and substantially in value, the total value of exports of copra, coconut oil, cake and meal and desiccated coconut in 1936 being about 20 percent greater than in 1935. Volume and value in the two years are estimated as follows:

	1935

Copra	256,683	22,135,993
Coconut oil	163,824	24,561,537

Domestic factories using coconut oil in the manufacture of soap, vegetable lard and margarine for domestic use and exportation were active throughout the year and their production is estimated to have been only about eight percent less than in 1935, in spite of the fact that exportation of vegetable lard to the United States was cut down by a revision in the American Excise Tax Law. Prices of copra, coconut oil and cake and meal again fluctuated widely, but the market was very strong in the last half of the year and the average for the year was higher than in recent years.

Total copra production for the Islands is estimated at 614,812 metric tons in 1936, or four percent under the 641,507 tons estimated for 1935.

Copra production was fairly heavy in the first six months of 1936, arrivals at Manila and Cebu, the two principal manufacturing and exporting centers, amounting to 3,736,000 sacks in the 1936 period, compared with 3,051,000 sacks in the same period of 1935. American demand was only moderate and European buying dominated the market. Only 49 percent of total exports of copra went to the United States in the first half of 1936, compared with 84 percent in the same period of 1935.

The trend of prices was easy during the period and the average was about ₱2.00 lower than in the same period of 1935. The market opened the year strong with resecada advancing from ₱9.25 per hundred kilos at the beginning of January to ₱10.75 toward the end of the month The attractive prices brought out large supplies of copra, causing a steady drop to ₱8.50 at the beginning of March. Renewed European buying forced the price up to ₱9.50 at the end of March, but unexpectedly large arrivals, with a weak oil market, brought about a steady decline to ₱7.00 at the end of April. Reduced arrivals and good European demand caused a gradual advance to ₱8.35 at the end of May and the market continued at about that level in June.

The situation was markedly different in the last half of the year. Arrivals increased somewhat less than seasonally and for the six months period amounted to only 4,279,000 sacks, compared with 4,893,000 sacks in the same period of 1935. Arrivals were particularly disappointing in November and December. European buying, which had dominated the market in the first half of 1936, fell off in July and was an inconsiderable factor during the remainder of the year, while American demand increased strongly, possibly due in part to the new American Revenue Act, which imposed an excise tax on tallow and various oilseeds not covered by the previous Act, thus diverting them to Europe to a greater extent and improving the competitive position of Philippine copra in the United States. The drought in the United States was also an important factor. From August on, exports went mainly to the United States and in the last quarter almost entirely so. For the full year, exports to the United States made up 175,906 metric tons out of a total exports of 281,370 metric tons, or about 63 percent. In 1935, they made up 211,386 metric tons, out of a total of 256,683 metric tons, or about 82 percent. Total exports for the year were thus about ten percent greater than in 1935, while exports to the United States were about 22 percent lower. Value of total exports was up nearly 30 percent.

The increased American demand for copra and oil brought about a firmer market and as it became clear that copra arrivals were running considerably below expectations, the price advanced rapidly, particularly in the last quarter of the year. The average price for the month increased from ₱7.82 per hundred kilos for resecada in June to ₱9.04 in July, ₱10.21 in August, ₱12.50 in September, and ₱14.25 in October. By the end of November, it had increased to ₱16.00 and throughout December it advanced steadily to ₱20.50 at the end of the year, with some transactions going through as high as ₱21.00. There were at all times more buyers than sellers in the last quarter and with fancy prices offered in the United States for spot oil, mills were compelled to bid for copra, to the advantage of holders with accumulated stocks. American mills also increased their offers but found it difficult to obtain delivery at the end of the year on account of shortage of shipping space and the difficulty of getting ships unloaded on the Pacific Coast. It is not quite clear to what extent the prices of copra and oil at the end of the year were affected by the shipping situation, but the principal factors seem to be the general increase in consumption of oils, a shortage of oils in the United States, and the disappointing production in the Philippines.

Copra stocks in Manila and Cebu and other provincial ports at the end of the year totaled only 51,962 metric tons, a considerable reduction from the 87,254 metric tons at the end of 1935. Production is expected to be relatively light during the first half of 1937, particularly in Southern Luzon, where a typhoon in November appears to have done a good deal of damage. It is also believed by some authorities that the bearing capacity of the trees has been impaired during the past few months by the practice of harvesting green nuts to take advantage of relatively good prices. Sales at the end of the year were only for immediate delivery, buyers being reluctant to make future commitments at prevailing prices.

Coconut oil exports in 1936 totaled 158,802 metric tons, about three percent under the 163,824 metric tons exported in 1935. The value increased nearly 13 percent, however. Exports went almost entirely to the United States, as usual. Mills were active throughout the year but found some difficulty in buying copra advantageously due to the tendency of oil prices to lag behind copra prices. Stocks declined, amounting to only 9,909 metric tons at the end of the year, compared with 14,963 metric tons at the beginning.

Manufacturers of coconut oil products were also active throughout the year, producing soap, lard and margarine for the domestic and neighboring markets, extending as far as Java and India. Their American market was reduced, however, by changes in the American Revenue laws which made the excise tax applicable to all products of coconut oil, whether or not the first processing took place in the United States. It is estimated that about 34,534 tons of oil was consumed locally in the manufacture of these products, against 37,669 tons in 1935. Three new companies were organized to make soap, perfume and possibly lard and margarine, but none of them had started production by the end of the year.

The market was dull but fairly steady at 18 to 19 centavos per kilo during the first quarter of the year, falling to 15 centavos in April and May. The unwillingness of local mills to sell, in view of the stronger copra market, caused a gradual but steady increase to 18-1/2 centavos at the end of July. The advance accelerated in August, with increasing American demand, and by the end of the year the price had reached 37 centavos per kilo, or double the price at the end of 1935.

Copra cake and meal the former being taken by European buyers and the latter preferred in the United States, were in good demand throughout the year. Exports totaled 110,511 metric tons, of which the United States took 53,163 metric tons, or a little less than half. In 1935, exports totaled 103,031 metric tons, of which the United States took 32,689 metric tons, or about 30 percent. European demand dominated the market during a large part of the year, particularly between March and July, American buyers being unable to compete with rising European quotations. A sudden increase in demand from the United States, presumably due to drought conditions, caused a sharp increase in price in July which Europe could not meet, and European purchases were negligible during the balance of the year. In the last two months, there were a few sales to Europe, even though prices were not competitive, due to the difficulty of making shipments to the United States. Stocks declined from 8,495 tons at the beginning of the year to 4,319 tons at the end.

The market was easy during the first two months, the price of cake falling from ₱30.00 per metric ton at the beginning of the year to ₱23.00 at the end of February. It was strong the rest of the year, due to good demand from both Europe and the United States and to reluctance of mills to make commitments. The cake price rose to ₱39.50 by the end of June and increased to ₱41.00 in July. The latter quotation quickly became nominal, however, as the price of meal increased rapidly to $28.00 per short ton, c.i.f Pacific Coast, equivalent to ₱51.50 per metric ton, f.o.b. Manila, by the end of July. The Pacific Coast market continued its advance to $31.00 by the end of August, eased off to $27.00 but closed the year strong at $30.50. It is not generally believed that the demand is likely to continue at the same rate and some business with Europe is expected during the first quarter of 1937.

Desiccated coconut exports increased in 1936, amounting to 36,064 metric tons, compared with 34,729 metric tons in 1935. Exports were very good during most of the year but fell somewhat in the last quarter, due to the difficulty of purchasing nuts and the increase in freight cost caused by the shipping strike, which made it necessary to route shipments through Canadian ports. Reduced production is expected in the first quarter of 1937, unless the supply of nuts increases.

An act passed by the National Assembly in its 1936 session directed the Philippine National Bank and the National Development Company to establish, operate and maintain warehouses for copra. Another act provided for a National Produce Exchange to facilitate trading in agricultural products, including copra.

ABACA (MANILA HEMP)

Abaca was again the fourth largest export commodity, in value, being exceeded by sugar, coconut products and gold. The value of abaca exports increased substantially in 1936, however, amounting to ₱34,177,197, compared with ₱22,947,933 in 1935 and ₱17,323,136 in 1934. The value of abaca exports has increased steadily since 1932 and the 1936 figure was the largest since 1930.

The 1936 increase was due to better prices rather than to greater volume of exports, volume being about eight percent lower in 1936. Exports by markets in the two years were as follows; in bales:

	1935	1936
United States and Canada	373,168	309,747
United Kingdom	336,174	318,216
Continental Europe	165,728	177,250

Australia and New Zealand	31,178	19,472
Other countries	24,700	28,953
Total	1,448,963	1,333,843

Although the United States is only the third best market in volume taken, it probably led in value, as the American market takes the more expensive grades.

Domestic mill consumption adds about 60,000 bales a year, mostly unbaled hemp.

Production fell off in 1936, as expected, balings amounting to only 1,295,010 bales, against 1,480,396 in 1935 and 1,441,202 in 1934. Stocks were estimated at 147,662 bales at the end of the year, or considerably under the 191,121 bales at the beginning. Production is expected to be about the same in 1937 as in 1936.

The strong market of the last half of 1935 did not carry over into 1936. Balings did not fall off to the extent anticipated, in the first quarter of the year, and all foreign markets were stagnant, with the result that prices eased off during the first four months. Holders generally were unwilling to sell at the lower prices offered and the market was inactive, though there were some sales by holders tired of waiting for an upturn. A notable decrease in balings in April and May, together with increasing interest on the part of foreign markets, particularly Europe, caused prices to advance sharply toward the end of May. The market continued strong throughout the rest of the year, closing with a notably firm tone as demand from all export markets increased in December and balings continued moderate. Holders were persistently optimistic and inactivity developed with every recession in prices during the year. A popular grade, J-2, fell from ₱12.00 per picul at the beginning of the year to ₱10.25 at the end of April, rose to ₱13.25 at the end of September and closed the year at ₱16.00. Manila prices on the principal grades at the beginning and end of the year were as follows:

Grade	January 1	December 31
CD	₱23.50	₱28.00
E	20.50	23.00
F	19.25	21.00

K	9.75	15.25
L-1	8.75	14.75

Freight rates were increased ₱1.50 per bale to the United States and ₱1.00 per bale to Japan, effective May 1. Rates to the United Kingdom and Continental European ports were increased 16 shillings per ton of 20 cwt., effective October 1. Further rate increases are believed likely, on account of the shortage of ships.

Cordage exports declined, due to the fact that the quota limit had been reached in 1935 and new shipments to the United States could not be resumed until the new quota year, beginning May 1, 1936. About 65 percent of the 6,000,000-pound quota for the year ending April 30, 1937, had been shipped to the United States by the end of the year. Shipments to other countries were somewhat increased in 1936. Exports in 1935 and 1936 were as follows:

RICE

The market was firm at the beginning of the year, as it became evident that the crop was far from adequate to fill domestic requirements. At the beginning of the year, luxury grades sold for ₱6.10 to ₱6.30 per cavan of 57-1/2 kilos and Macans for ₱5.75 to ₱5.95. Luxury grade palay sold at ₱3.00 and ordinary palay at ₱2.85. The price moved up to ₱7.10 to ₱7.15 for luxury grades and ₱6.70 to ₱6.90 for macans in April, with palay at ₱3.10 to ₱3.30. The organization of the National Rice and Corn Corporation in April checked the advance, as that organization immediately commenced the importation of rice, which was offered for sale at ₱6.24 per cavan wholesale and 28 centavos per ganta retail. A brief flurry followed the decision of the Collector of Customs in April that the National Rice and Corn Corporation would have to pay duty since it was selling imported rice at a profit. That decision was soon reversed, however, on the grounds that the corporation is government-owned, that profit is not its primary purpose and that such profits as are made will be used to advance its primary aim of stabilizing rice prices.

Prices were steady during the rest of the year, at ₱7.10 to ₱7.40 for luxury grades and ₱6.50 to ₱6.75 for macans, with palay at ₱3.05 to ₱4.30. There was a decline toward the end of the year, when new crop rice began to appear on the market and the National Rice and Corn Corporation, in September, dropped its retail price to 26 centavos a ganta. New crop palay was sold as low as ₱2.10 per cavan in October, but the Corporation took effective means to forestall efforts to depress prices by offering to purchase palay at producing centers at ₱2.25 to ₱2.50, depending on the grade. The year closed with palay selling for ₱2.85 to ₱2.40 per cavan, luxury rice at ₱5.45 to ₱6.50 and macans at ₱4.85 to ₱5.40.

The palay crop for the year ended June 30, 1936, was estimated by the Bureau of Commerce at 43,000,000 cavans of 44 kilos, equivalent to 21,500,000 cavans (of 57-1/2 kilos) of cleaned rice. This compares with an estimate of nearly 46,000,000 cavans of palay in 1934-35. The 1935-36 crop was about 4,000,000 cavans below normal domestic requirements and nearly 2,000,000 cavans of rice was imported. Rains in September and October relieved fears that the 1936-37 crop would be another short one, and it now appears probable that the new crop will yield as much as 47,000,000 cavans, or approximately sufficient for normal domestic requirements.

One of the first measures adopted by the new Commonwealth Government was the appointment of a comission, with Honorable Manuel Roxas as Chairman, to study the rice question. This comission recommended, among other things, the formation of a National Rice and Corn Corporation, as a subsidiary of the National Development Company, with an authorized capital of ₱4,000,000, of which ₱2,000,000 should be paid in. This Corporation was formed early in April, the National Development Company supplying ₱1,000,000 from its own resources and ₱1,000,000 obtained by selling additional stock to the Government. Its purpose is to stabilize rice and palay prices by purchasing palay from the growers during the season, when prices are ordinarily low, and selling rice, either domestic or imported, during periods of scarcity and high prices. During 1936, its activities were confined largely to importing rice, duty-free, and distributing it through commercial channels at fixed prices, thus preventing profiteering that might have come as a result of the short crop. Toward the end of the year, however, it demonstrated its ability to forestall efforts of buyers to depress palay prices during the harvesting season, by offering to purchase palay at producing centers at ₱2.25 to ₱2.50. A comparatively moderate amount of rice was purchased, but sufficient to prevent private buyers from driving prices down to a point much below the level set.

The capital of the National Rice and Corn Corporation was probably at least doubled by the sale of duty-free imported rice at a price considerably above current Saigon prices. It may be expected that this capital will be an important factor in stabilizing rice prices in the future, particularly if effective steps are taken to prevent too rapid increases in production. At the present time, the principal problem of the National Rice and Corn Corporation seems to be to lease or otherwise obtain sufficient warehouse space to store all the palay that may be offered to it. Officials report that progress along that line is encouraging.

The Roxas Commission also recommended that a tax of three centavos per sack be paid on all rice turned out by power-driven mills. The proceeds would go to increase the funds of the National Rice and Corn Corporation, to be used in stabilizing rice prices. This tax has not yet been imposed but will be considered by the National Assembly in its next session, in October.

TOBACCO

With increased planting due to excellent prices for the small 1935 crop and with favorable weather conditions, the 1936 tobacco crop in the Cagayan Valley amounted to about 380,000 to 400,000 quintals, which was about 50 percent greater than the 1935 crop though slightly below what is considered normal production. Quality was about average. Prices, which had been unusually high in 1935 due to the small crop and the necessity of the largest exporter to fill contracts regardless of cost, fell off rapidly between February and April when it became clear that the 1936 crop would be a fairly good one. It is difficult to make exact price comparisons due to the absence of adequate grading standards, but the price level during the last half of 1936 was apparently around 50 percent below that for the same period of 1935. Farmers were reluctant to accept these reduced prices, but with the comparatively good supply and the lack of export demand, it became clear that there was no likelihood of an increase and most of the crop was in the hands of dealers by the end of November.

Floods in the Cagayan Valley at the beginning of December caused serious damage to seedbeds in Isabela. To some extent, it may be possible to replace destroyed seedlings, but it seems certain that a very considerable replanting of seeds will be necessary. This will make part of the crop much later and more vulnerable to weather conditions. In the province of Cagayan there was some destruction of transplanted plants but not much damage to seedbeds. Transplanting continued shortly after the floods subsided and with the earth enriched by deposits from the floods, an increased crop in Cagayan is possible. Much depends on weather conditions but it seems almost certain that the 1937 crop in the Cagayan Valley will be below normal. Prices of Cagayan Valley tobacco increased about 30 percent, as a result of the flood, but it soon became clear that damage to tobacco in warehouses was not as great as at first believed, and with demand continuing moderate, much of the gain in prices was lost.

The crop in other provinces, including La Union, Pangasinan and Panay, is estimated to have been somewhere in the neighborhood of 400,000 quintals, or about the same as the previous year. Prices were steady to firm throughout the year, with the lower grades of Pangasinan and La Union tobacco particularly in demand for the manufacture of very cheap cigars by small independent producers for local consumption. The outlook at present is for an increased crop in La Union and Pangasinan in 1937, although it is too early to make any predictions.

Exports of leaf tobacco fell off sharply in 1936, amounting to only 12,545,690 kilos, a reduction of about 32 percent from the 1935 figure of 18,517,000 kilos. Exports were moderate in the first half of 1936 due to limited supplies and in the latter part of the year due to lack of foreign demand, with Spain out of the market most of the time. There was a fairly large amount exported in December to France, with other ports optional, and it will doubtless go to Spain if conditions permit. It is apparent, however, that exports will be at a relatively low level so long as conditions in that principal market continue so uncertain, and prospects for export trade in 1937 are not promising. The Japanese and Korean monopolies took a large shipment in February but were out of the market for the rest of the year, aside from a very moderate shipment in December. Exports of scraps to the United States totaled 1,000,000 kilos in 1936, or about 25 percent less than in 1935.

The manufacture of cigars fell off badly in 1936, due to the sharp decrease in exports to the United States, which fell off to 164,905,000 in 1936, a decrease of over 20 percent from the 1935 figure of 208,676,000. Exports of the better grade cigars increased in 1936, but these are still negligible quantity. Exports to other foreign countries fell off moderately, amounting to 14,637,306 units in 1936, against 15,771,427 in 1935. Domestic sales totaled 103,863,826 in the first eleven months of 1936, or about the same as in 1935.

Production of cigarettes amounted to 2,809,000,000 units in the first eleven months of 1936, a very slight increase over 1935. Domestic sales totaled 2,753,000,000 in the eleven months period, or about two to three percent better than in the same period of 1935, while exports amounted to 16,000,000 and deliveries to the United States Army and Navy 33,000,000. Cigarette production declined steadily from 5,110,000,000 in 1928 to 2,965,000,000 in 1934, on account of increasing preference for American cigarettes. It has held even or increased very slightly, however, in the past two years.

Production of chewing tobacco totaled 193,619 kilos and production of smoking tobacco 182,547 kilos, all for domestic consumption.

Stocks of leaf tobacco in the hands of manufacturers and dealers increased in 1936, as was to be expected, with the larger crop and reduced exports. Stocks as of November 30, 1936, totaled 31,766,454 kilos, not including stocks in the hands of 40 small dealers from whom reports have not been received. Total stocks in the hands of importers and dealers as of December 31, 1935, were 28,774,678 kilos.

New legislation of interest to the tobacco trade includes an Act increasing the license fee for leaf tobacco dealers from ₱20.00 a year to ₱30.00 and an Act directing the Philippine National Bank and the National Development Company to invest such amounts as may be necessary out of the funds at their disposal in building and maintenance of warehouses for leaf tobacco. The latter Act is expected to help stabilize tobacco prices by permitting farmers to store and borrow on their tobacco during the harvesting season in case they believe they can get better prices by holding it. Some authorities believe that farmers with good tobacco will be reluctant to store it in warehouses for fear of having it mixed up with tobacco of inferior quality, attempts to introduce standard grading having so far not been very successful. There is also the difficulty that farmers generally have to borrow at the time of transplanting and during the growing season, giving to the lenders the first opportunity to purchase their tobacco at prevailing market prices.

LUMBER AND TIMBER

The lumber industry had a very good year in 1936, with production and exports both increased substantially. Mill production in the first eleven months totaled 221,097,159 board feet, which compared with 207,588,288 board feet in the same period of 1935. Mills were working at capacity during most of the year and many of them were working double shifts in the last few months of the year. Lumber inventory in the hands of mills was reduced by heavy November deliveries and totaled 38,076,674 board feet at the end of November, 1936, or about 1,692,000 board feet less than the inventory a year earlier. With the excellent export and domestic demand the inventory is believed to have been further reduced by the end of the year.

Exports increased to all major markets, excepting China, according to the Bureau of Customs. There was a total of 122,973 cubic meters of lumber, valued at ₱3,614,949 exported in 1936, compared with 107,854 cubic meters, valued at ₱3,118,992 in 1935. Nearly 60 percent of the total went to the United States, with most of the balance divided between Great Britain, British Africa, Australia and China. Exports of logs totaled 329,425 cubic meters, valued at ₱2,584,291, in 1936, compared with 229,808 cubic meters, valued at ₱1,904,527, in 1935. Logs went almost entirely to Japan. China showed an increasing tendency to take logs rather than lumber, but was a rather inactive market for either during most of the year. A considerable shipment of logs was made to Korea in October.

Lumber prices were steady to firm, averaging for the year about ten percent higher than in 1935. The average value per thousand board feet of lumber exports appear to have declined, however, due to increased shipments of lower grades, particularly to the United States. At one time, only the best grades were shipped, but with the demand increasing, there has been a tendency to ship the lower grades as well and one of the smaller mills is exporting its entire output. This increase in the proportion of lumber exported has eased the pressure on the domestic market and with the activity in the building trades and with the mines requiring an increasingly large quantity of lumber and mine timbers, domestic prices for lumber have been firm.

The heavy increase in exports of logs to Japan has caused a considerable amount of concern to the Philippine lumber industry. The Japanese market for lumber, at one time an important one, was completely lost some years ago when the Japanese tariff was adjusted to give a strong degree of preference to imports of logs rather than lumber. In recent years Japanese lumber made from Philippine logs has been offering increasingly keener competition to Philippine lumber in Shanghai, Singapore and other markets. It has been suggested that an export tax be placed on logs or that a quota be imposed requiring a fixed ratio of lumber to logs shipped to any country, but no bill embodying any such suggestion was introduced in the 1936 session of the National Assembly. An Act passed by the Assembly and awaiting action by the American President, putting an embargo on the exportation of buntal fiber, is somewhat similar in principle and is being watched with interest by the lumber people.

An Act was passed by the National Assembly relieving forest products of payment of the wharfage tax.

MINING

Gold production continued to increase, with a new production record set nearly every month during 1936. The total for the year was ₱44,394,552, which compares with ₱32,600,683 in 1935 and ₱23,823,356 in 1934. There has been a spectacular increase in production since 1928, when gold production was valued at ₱3,808,124, or even since 1932, when it was ₱10,200,167. In those earlier years, however, production was valued at only ₱41.34 per ounce, whereas beginning with 1934, it has been valued at ₱70.00 an ounce.

The increase in 1936 was due partly to entrance into the field of five new mines, one of which may be ranked as among the leading producers, and partly to increased production by the older mines. One group of four mines, under the same management, produced gold with a total value of ₱23,588,782, or more than half the total production. Production by mines in 1935 and 1936 was as follows:

With several new mines expected to come into production in 1937, it may be conservatively anticipated that 1937 production will exceed ₱50,000,000 which will permit gold to hold its place as third leading export commodity.

The public took an extreme interest in mining shares during the year, which in some cases exceeded anything that could be justified by actual operations or visible prospects. Many of the producing mines were nevertheless able to show good profits on their invested capital and the number of dividend payers increased from 6 to 15, the 1936 figure including one iron mining company, one management, and one investment company. Dividends paid in the two years were as follows:

A bill passed in the 1936 session of the National Assembly increased taxes and royalties on gold production and established a code of rules for the regulation of the mining industry. Taxes remain reasonably moderate, however. Another bill established a Bureau of Mines in the Department of Agriculture and Commerce, replacing the Mines Division of the Bureau of Science.

Production and exportation of iron ore continued at an increasing rate, the one producing company shipping 596,000 tons to Japan during the year, compared with 305,000 tons in 1935. The ore averages 62 to 63 percent iron. The original contract made at the beginning of 1936 called for total shipments of 450,000 tons for the year, but that total was reached early in October and 146,000 tons additional shipped during the balance of the year. The contract for 1937 calls for shipments of 600,000 tons.

Interest continued in chromite and a number of properties were staked and some development work done. One company, which has about 100,000 tons of ore blocked out, averaging a little better than 50 percent chromium, started shipping commercially in August and shipped altogether nearly 10,000 tons before the shortage of freight space made further shipments impossible. Another company with large deposits of lower grade chromite made a trial shipment to the United States for tests of its value as a refractory material, but the shipping situation prevented further shipments.

Production of other metallic minerals was negligible. Considerable development work was done on a copper deposit in Panay, which appears to be small but of good grade, although so far development work has been insufficient to permit any very definite report on either size or quality of the deposit. Development work was done on a few manganese claims and it is reported that one, in Ilocos, is planning to make commercial shipments to the United States in 1937, but on the whole, the prospects of manganese production in the Philippines on a large scale are not, so far, inpressive. Buyers of mineral ores were attracted to the Philippines during the year, one Italian metal broker opening an office and a company being organized locally to represent Japanese interests. Several new mining companies were registered during the year as well as management companies and investment companies.

There was a lively interest in petroleum possibilities at the beginning of the year and several exploration companies were formed. The more substantial ones abandoned the field, however, primarily as a result of legal technicalities, and the public interest in petroleum possibilities died down as quickly as it had arisen. Many geologits believe that it is unlikely that petroleum will be found in commercial quantities, due to the faulted structure of the Islands, which prevents accumulation in pools.

Among non-metallic minerals, cement production is estimated at 729,000 barrels in 1936, a considerable increase over the 640,000 barrels in 1935 and 600,000 berrels in 1934. Prospects for 1937 appear favorable and a further increase is likely.

Production of coal continued small, only one mine operated. An engineering company made a survey of a coal property owned by the National Development Company and almost adjacent to the plant of the Cebu Portland Cement Company. Although the quality of the coal is believed to be inferior to that of imported coal, it is expected that the considerable saving in freight cost will make it desirable to develop the property, though no decision has yet been announced.

There was a general increase in the production of other minerals, including clay products, lime, salt, sand gravel, crushed rock and rock asphalt. The latter has so far been produced only in a small way in Leyte. A considerable increase in production is expected in 1937, as a result of a contract understood to have been placed for an airplane landing field.

A committee appointed by the Chairman of the National Economic Council has recommended the formation of a National Iron Company as a subsidiary of the National Development Company. It is planned to make a survey of iron ore deposits in the Philippines with a view to determining whether it is desirable to develop deposits owned by the Government.

MOTION PICTURES

There were two producing companies in the Philippines in 1936, the Filippine Films, Inc. and the Parlatone Hispano-Filipino, Inc. They produced altogether 14 feature length pictures, averaging 9,000 feet, five shorts and four news reels. Most of the pictures were produced in Tagalog but one feature was produced in Spanish, for export, and one completed just at the end of the year was made in English, for the American market. Two of the shorts were scenic subjects, in color, mainly for the export market.

One producing company is planning to make four to six feature length pictures in Tagalog in 1937 and one featue in English, for export. The other producer has under consideration 25 pictures for 1937, including two in Spanish and one in English, for export. It is unlikely that more than half that number will be made, however.

The domestic market for pictures continued to fall off during the year. There were 148 theaters wired for sound at the beginning of the year and 63 not wired for sound. The latter were negligible, only a few silent pictures being available for showing. It is estimated that there were about 140 theaters wired for sound at the end of the year, a reduction of about six percent. First-run theaters in Manila, with air-conditioning, appear to have done well but neighborhood theaters suffered and very few provincial theaters had a satisfactory year.

A new Board of Censorship was appointed in the middle of 1936. It appears to have continued the liberal policy of the old Board and little occasion was found to make cuts in pictures during the year.

A bill enacted by the National Assembly during the year provides for a five percent amusement tax to be paid on admissions exceeding 40 centavos.

A new ordinance adopted by the Municipal Board of Manila imposes more stringent regulations regarding storage vaults for motion picture films. So far, no very considerable alterations have been required under that ordinance, however.

A municipal ordinance prohibiting the sale of standing room tickets for first-run movie theater was declared unconstitutional by the Court of First Instance as class legislation.

TEXTILES

Imports of cotton textiles from the United States again decreased in 1936, in spite of the fact that the Japanese quota agreement was in effect throughout the year. In this agreement, the Japanese engaged to limit "Philippine imports of Japanese-made cotton piecegoods" to 45,000,000 square meters in each of the two years beginning August 1, 1935, with a ten percent margin for anticipation or carry-over and a limit of 26,000,000 square meters in any half-year. The wording of the agreement to limit "Philippine imports" was presumably for the purpose of making it clear that imports of Japanese-made goods transhipped at Hong Kong or other ports were to be included as well as direct shipments from Japan. Limitation of transhipments was found more difficult than had been anticipated, however, as these goods are imported into Hong Kong by Chinese merchants, ostensibly for the requirements of that market, and reshipped to Chinese merchants in Manila. As a result, imports of Japanese cotton piecegoods in the first quota-year, ended July 31, 1936, amounted to 52,675,000 square meters, exceeding the quota limit (including the ten percent tolerance) by 3,175,000 square meters. Of the total, 45,148,000 square meters came direct from Japan and 7,527,000 square meters was transhipped at Hong Kong. This apparently leaves only 37,325,000 square meters, including transhipments, to be received from Japan in the second quota year. Arrivals during the first five months of the second quota-year totaled 21,625,000 square meters. Efforts were being made at the end of the year to control transhipments, with some promise of success.

The quota agreement has unquestionably limited importation of Japanese-made cotton textiles. Actual 1936 arrivals (for the calendar year) were 48,669,638 square meters, which compares with Customs figures showing 72,374,000 square meters imported in 1935. (Customs figures represent liquidations of Customs entries, but actual arrivals of goods were at least as great and probably greater.) Without the agreement, it may be assumed that there would have been a substantial increase in 1936 instead of the marked decrease from the 1935 figures. Unfortunately, American textiles do not appear to have been the beneficiaries of the Japanese restraint, imports totaling only 27,583,336 square meters whereas Customs figures for 1935 show liquidations covering 35,250,000 square meters and actual arrivals were approximately as great. Imports from the United States in 1936 include about 8,250,000 square meters of embroidery cloth, compared with 10,989,600 square meters in 1935. The decreased importation of cotton textiles from Japan and the United States was partly offset by imports of cotton textiles from China and Hong Kong, which totaled 11,366,505 square meters in 1936, whereas in 1935 such imports were negligible. Imports of rayon from Japan nearly doubled, increasing from 13,692,338 square meters in 1935 to 25,618,558 square meters in 1936, as a result of the success of Japanese rayon manufacturers in making available fabrics which were bright and attractive, though perhaps not very substantial, at prices considerably lower than those at which American cotton goods could be offered. The Hong Kong and Chinese cotton industry and the Japanese rayon industry appear, therefore, to have been the chief gainers from the quota agreement.

Demand for cotton textiles was rather slow throughout most of the year. Prices were fairly steady in the first half-year, though heavy arrivals of rayon from Japan and cotton goods transhipped at Hong Kong caused some nervousness in the market. The transhipped goods in particular had an unsettling effect on prices because they were purchased in Japan at the non-quota price, which is lower than the price for Philippine quota goods and not being subject to the export fee, were in a position to undersell Japanese goods imported direct. Easier prices toward the middle of the year reduced the transhipment trade by making it less profitable and importation of Japanese rayon also declined seasonally. Business in all textiles was more than seasonally dull during the rainy season. By August, however, it began to be apparent that stocks were getting low and a number of inquiries were sent to the United States, chiefly for grey drills and sheetings denims, khakis and other staples. These inquiries continued and increased in volume throughout the rest of the year but resulted in only a moderate volume of orders being placed, for the reason that American prices advanced too rapidly for the local market to keep pace. Prices in the local market advanced steadily throughout the last five months of the year but were never quite able to catch up with the American prices. The fact that American mills were unable during the latter part of the year to promise any delivery earlier than three or four months, was also a deterrent factor, due to reluctance of importers to make commitments so far ahead at high prices and also to their unwillingness to have goods arrive in volume at the beginning of the rainy season. Japanese prices advanced more moderately during the later part of the year and kept always well under-American prices. At the end of the year, however, Japanese as well as American importers found it difficult to get any promise of reasonably prompt deliveries, mills being unable to promise any better than four or five months on many types of cloth. Japanese prices at the same time advanced sharply, while demand became unusually urgent. The volume of inquiries for American goods was better than in some years, but importers of American textiles were unable to take full advantage of the situation on account of the great difficulty in getting their orders filled by American mills.

It appears probable that the demand for cotton textiles will continue at least during the first quarter of 1937. A seasonal reduction in demand may be expected after Easter, but the decline may very likely be less than usual as it will doubtless take some time to replenish stocks. Imports from Japan will of necessity be very light during the first seven months of 1937, under the terms of the quota agreement, and the market for American goods should benefit accordingly, if goods are available.

Imports of cotton, rayon and silk textiles in 1935 and 1936, according to the Bureau of Customs, were as follows:

It will be observed that nearly 80 percent of the bleached goods imported from the United States was embroidery cloth which does not enter the Philippine market but is returned to the United States in the form of garments.

IMPORTED FOODSTUFFS

Flour.—Consumption of flour increased substantially in 1936, due to a shortage of rice and the increased purchasing power of the people. Imports for the year totaled 4,037,182 bags (of 49 pounds) in 1936, and increase of 18 percent over 1935 imports, and stocks were extremely low at the end of the year. Consumption is apparently running at the rate of at least 325,000 bags a month.

Imports from the United States, after declining throughout 1935, continued to fall off during the first few months of 1936, due to the fact that American prices were relatively much higher than Australian or Canadian. Imports from the United States made up only 19 percent of the total during the first quarter of the year and only 22 percent in the first half. American prices were reduced in March as the result of a subsidy and orders increased moderately. There was a further price reduction early in June, which brought American prices to a competitive level and American flour dominated the trade thereafter, until the shipping strike made it impossible to load flour at American ports in the last quarter of the year. Imports from the United States made up 37 percent of total imports in the first eleven months of 1936, compared with 27 percent in the same period of 1935. Light arrivals of American flour in December reduced the proportion for the twelve months of 1936 to 35 percent. There were, however, large stocks of American flour ordered from the United States awaiting shipment at the end of the year. The total of imports from the United States in 1936 is 59 percent greater than that for 1935. Imports from Canada and Australia also increased, while imports from Japan were somewhat reduced.

Japanese flour is apparently used only by Japanese bakers. The use of Canadian flour is mainly confined to Manila bakeries, as it requires more kneading than American or Australian flour and only the largest bakeries have machines for kneading. Stocks of Canadian flour appeared ample at the end of the year, but stocks of American and Australian flour were very low.

Imports, according to ship's manifests, in 1935 and 1936 (in bags of 49 pounds) were as follows:

	1935	1936
American	894,448	1,419,436
Canadian	645,984	807,720
Australian	1,455,582	1,449,116
Japanese	419,100	334,100
Chinese	10,200	26,810
Total	3,425,314	4,037,182

Prices were inclined to be easy during the first half of the year, averaging about a ten percent decline between the first of the year and the first of June. American prices naturally decreased more markedly, due to the subsidy. During the last half of the year, prices were firm, being on an average about 55 percent higher at the end of the year than at the first of June.

Canned Fish.—Japanese competition on canned sardines continued, with Japanese prices averaging ten percent below American prices in the first half of the year. American prices increased throughout the second half of the year and were about 20 percent over American prices in October and November. In December, with no arrivals of American canned fish, the very small remaining stocks were sold at nearly 25 percent over the Japanese prices, which remained practically unchanged throughout the year. Imports of sardines from Japan exceeded those from the United States for the first time, being estimated (from ships' manifests) at 130,870 cases, compared with 109,000 cases in 1935. Imports of sardines from the United States totaled 99,224 cases in 1936, against 115,000 cases in 1935. Imports of pilchards from the United States increased, however, amounting to 76,335 cases in 1936, against 44,000 cases in 1935. Imports of sardines from Europe increased substantially, totaling 15,000 cases in 1936. There were 24,000 cases of salmon from the United States and 3,750 cases from Canada. Dried cod-fish came into favor as an addition to the fish diet, due to its low price, and about 24,000 packages were imported from Japan during the year.

Imports of sardines and pilchards from the United States together exceeded imports of sardines from Japan by 30 percent in volume in 1936, but it is notable that nearly 70 percent of the year's imports of American sardines and pilchards came in the first half of the year, whereas imports from Japan were about equally divided between the first half and the second half of the year. No shipments of canned fish were being made from the United States at the end of the year, due to the considerably increased cost of shipping via Vancouver.

Canned Milk—Canned milk imports appear from a study of manifests to have increased moderately in 1936, the totals for 1935 and 1936 being as follows:

	Cases
	1935	1936
Condensed	207,109	207,764
Evaporated	539,055	552,978
Sterilised	22,299	24,018
Total	768,463	784,760

Customs returns, showing liquidations of entries rather than actual arrivals of goods, suggest a more substantial increase in value. The total value of condensed milk imports is recorded at ₱2,500,000, an eight percent increase over 1935, while evaporated milk is valued at ₱4,188,000, a 60 percent increase over 1935. The major share came from the Netherlands. Imports of condensed milk from the United States made up nearly 30 percent of the total for the first quarter but declined during the rest of the year and were negligible in the last quarter, amounting to only nine percent of the total for the year, according to the Customs figure, against 27 percent in 1935. Australia was the chief gainer, imports from that country amounting to 28 percent of the total in 1936, whereas there were no imports from Australia in 1935. Imports from Netherlands made up 56 percent in 1936 against 65 percent in 1935. Imports from Japan attracted notice around the middle of the year but were negligible in the last half and for the year made up only four percent of the total imports.

Imports of evaporated milk from the United States made up only 40 percent of the total in 1936, against 80 percent in 1935, the balance in each year coming from the Netherlands.

Local prices were steady throughout the year, with an increase of 20 centavos a case for evaporated milk in July. Retail prices on some brands of condensed and evaporated milk increased moderately in December. One of the principal importers put out a new brand at a low price during the year, in anticipation of Japanese competition which did not materialize.

Fresh Fruits and Vegetables.—Demand for apples, oranges, grapes and lemons continued good in 1936. Imports of apples appear to have increased and oranges to have decreased. Grape imports were below normal, due to frost damage to the American crop and the shipments that were received were not in the best condition. As usual, the United States got most of the business in apples, lemons and grapes and about 80 percent in value of the oranges. Japan continued to supply the biggest part of the onions and potatoes. Apples from Japan and China did not prove satisfactory to the Philippine taste. Imports of fresh fruits and vegetables from the United States fell off in November and December, due to the shipping strike, and stocks were very low at the end of the year, with prices increasing 50 percent in the last two months.

Other Foodstuffs.—Imports of fresh beef fell off to ₱785,000 in 1936, or 11 percent less than in 1935. The American share totaled 77 percent against 88 percent the previous year, Australia getting the balance. Although Customs figures indicate that the greater part of the beef imported in the past two years has been from the United States, it has apparently been chiefly Army imports, as fresh beef is hard to find in the cold stores and sells at prices sufficiently high to discourage most purchasers. Imports of canned sausage totaled ₱229,000 in 1936, an 18 percent, increase, and the American share continued at around 77 percent. Imports of frozen butter totaled ₱583,000, an increase of about 20 percent. As usual, it came largely from Australia, the American share being 20 percent against 29 percent in 1935.

AUTOMOTIVE

The automotive trade had a very good year in 1936, sales of cars totaling 3,067 for the year, a 17 percent increase over 1935 sales. Sales were remarkably consistent throughout the year, the high month being October with 337 and the low month, May with 208. The usual rainy season slump was not experienced, as rising quotations for mining shares along with general prosperity yielded profits which were reflected in automobile purchases, beginning with June and continuing throughout the balance of the year. Sales reached a peak on October, due partly to fear that luxury tax on automobile sales might be passed by the National Assembly, and, fell off in November due to a reaction in the stock market and to the fact that the National Assembly adjourned without acting on the Luxury Tax Bill. December sales were comparatively moderate due to shortage of stocks, but demand was excellent at the end of the year.

Truck sales were very good in the first quarter, fell off seasonally dring the rainy season and were good in the last four months of the year. Sales for the year totaled 2,279, a 15 percent increase over the 1935 figure. Sales to the sugar industry fell below expectations, but other sales were very good throughout the year, particularly to mining and transportation companies.

Imports of new cars by dealers totaled 2,826 in 1936, according to a census of all the importers. This includes 26 midget cars imported direct by a taxicab company. It is a considerable increase over the 2,594 cars imported in 1935. Imports were as usual almost entirely from the United States, although six cars were received from the German subsidiary of an American manufacturer and 23 were imported from Italy. These foreign cars appear to have found a ready market, coming at a time when there was a shortage of American cars, but it is not believed that foreign cars will become an imortant factor in the market.

Imports of new trucks by dealers totaled 2,129 in 1936, which compares with 1,744 in 1935. Trucks were all from the United States and included 16 diesel trucks, most of which had been sold by the end of the year.

Stocks of cars were considered normal at the beginning of the year and extremely low at the end, dealers having very few cars available to meet the demand. A shortage of medium— and high-priced cars developed as early as August due to the unexpected demand for that class of car. Prospective purchasers, to some extent, satisfied themselves with lower-priced cars but by the end of the year there were practically no stocks of any class of car. Sales during the year exceeded imports by 241 units.

Truck stocks were considered normal at the beginning of the year, increased to fairly large proportions at about mid-year but declined steadily in the last four months and were very low at the end of the year. Sales of trucks exceeded imports by 150 units.

Registrations at the end of 1936 totaled 28,420 cars, 17,355 trucks and buses, and 518 motorcycles. Of these, 14,213 cars, 5,071 trucks and buses and 320 motorcycles were registered in Manila and Rizal.

The used car situation was comfortable throughout the year. The demand was particularly good in the last quarter, as stocks of new cars were getting short and used car stocks were low at the end of the year.

Prospects for 1937 appear good and it is believed likely that sales of cars and trucks will approximately equal or possibly exceed those for 1936. There is an accumulated demand at the beginning of 1937, which may be expected to result in record sales for the first quarter, assuming that adequate stocks of new models become available during that period. The exceptional demand for high-priced cars as a result of stock market profits may not be repeated to the same extent in 1937, but so long as the present foreign demand for Philippine products continues, there seems no reason why there should be any abatement in the present general feeling of prosperity.

Automobile Accessories, Parts and Tires.—Business in automobile parts was good throughout 1936, showing a consistent increase over the preceding year, although the improvement was less striking than in the case of cars and trucks. Imports of parts, accessories and garage equipment totaled ₱1,929,626 a 22 percent increase over 1935. The increase in sales appears to have been more moderate, however, being estimated at 10 to 12 percent. Stocks were apparently increased, although they were considered normal at the end of the year. A notable feature was the increase in indenting, transportation companies and dealers showing a greater willingness to carry stocks themselves instead of relying on importers to carry stocks for them. There appears to be a greater proportion of new cars and trucks on the road, which will presumably not need parts to the same extent as old cars. With the greater number of cars, however, and with generally prosperous conditions, an improvement in sales of parts, accessories and garage equipment is expected in 1937.

Imports of automobile and truck tires, according to the Bureau of Customs, totaled 123,160, valued at ₱2,595,613, in 1936, compared with 93,529, valued at ₱1,829,074, in 1935. It is probable, however, that some bicycle tires were included. A careful examination of manifests indicates that imports of about 102,000 tires in the whole of 1936, an increase of about 18 percent over 1935. Sales were good throughout the year, apparently exceeding those for 1935 by at least 20 percent, as stocks were lower at the end of the year than at the beginning. Collections improved and were very good at the end of the year. Prospects for 1937 appear good, with an increased number of cars and trucks in use. Prices were increased ten percent in January 1, 1936, although five percent of this went to dealers in an extra discount. There was another increase of five percent on July 2 on all tires.

The tax on gasoline was increased to five centavos a liter (formerly four centavos) and that on lubricating oil to four centavos (formerly three centavos a liter as of January 1, 1937. Registration fees were increased by 25 to 50 percent. These increases will probably not greatly affect the sale or use of automobiles and trucks although there may be a tendency among transportation companies to reduce rolling stock by scrapping or storing old units and failing to replace them, in preference to paying the enhanced fees. Business of transportation companies was good at the end of the year and if it continues at the present rate, there will probably be no considerable reduction in the number of trucks and buses in use. A bill which might have had a more serious effect would have imposed ten percent tax on the first sale in the Commonwealth of certain articles designated as luxuries, including automobiles, accessories and tires. This bill was considered by the Ways and Means Committee but no action was taken on it. It may come up in future sessions of the National Assembly.

An Act passed by the National Assembly in 1936 removes the limitation on the power of the Manila Municipal Government to fix license fees for dealers in automobiles and accessories, merely requiring that the fee be reasonable. Heretofore, the fee has been limited by the Revised Asministrative Code to ₱500 a year. The Manila Municipal Council was considering, at the beginning of 1937, a proposal to increase license fees for dealers in a number of goods, including automobiles.

IRON AND STEEL PRODUCTS

Imports of iron and steel products, not including machinery, totaled ₱20,080,128 in 1936, according to Bureau of Customs returns. This exceeds the ₱13,954,149 for 1935 by 44 percent. The increase seems to have been general. Imports of some of the principal items for the two years were as follows:

	1935		1936
	U. S. A.	Total	U. S. A.	Total
Bars and rods	₱ 317,402	₱ 954,767	₱ 472,092	₱1,346,571
Corrugated roofing	2,584,647	2,650,200	3,114,608	3,242,493
Plain galvanized sheets	557,322	634,016	529,832	653,567
Barbed wire	33,088	172,143	25,266	258,463

The increase in imports of bars and rods was due to the considerably greater construction activity. Prospects for continued activity in reinforced concrete building construction appear very good and a further increase in imports of bars and rods is likely in 1937. Imports of bars and rods from the United States were about 50 percent greater than in 1935 and made up about 35 percent of total imports, or slightly better than the 33 percent in 1935. American bars were consistently quoted about 20 percent higher than Belgian and other European bars during most of the year and were imported only for Government work, where they had the advantage of the Flag Law. In December, however, European prices increased so rapidly as to pass the prices of American bars, leaving the market to the later.

Imports of corrugated roofing increased about 22 percent and as usual came almost entirely from the United States, in spite of the fact that Japanese roofing was at one time offered at a price nearly 20 percent lower. The increase in imports reflects the spread of prosperity, one of the first signs of individual prosperity among Philippine peasants being the replacemnt of a nipa roof with a corrugated iron roof.

Imports of plain galvanized sheets increased only slightly and the American proportion decreased from 88 percent of the total in 1935 to 81 percent in 1936, due to increased Japanese competition on the light gauges, 31 to 34. Some fault was found with the galvanizing of Japanese sheets, however, and importations were largely discontinued in the lst quarter.

Imports of barbed wire increased about 50 percent, but the American share was reduced to ten percent of the total, against 20 percent in 1935. American barbed wire was competitive in price during most of the year, but there was a prejudice against it, arising from the fact that it is tightly rolled. The ordinary purchaser in the Philippines sees more value in the losely rolled Japanese and European wire, in spite of the greater convenience of the small roll and the fact that the length and weight of the wire are plainly indicated on each roll.

It will be observed that imports of nails from the United States made up nearly 60 percent of the total in 1935, whereas in 1936 the American share was only 39 percent. Imports from Europe particularly Czechoslovakia, increased somewhat but the principal increase was in imports from Japan, which more than doubled. Actual imports of nails from Japan appear to have exceeded imports from the United States but with the considerably lower price prevailing for Japanese nails, they made up only 35 percent of the total in value. Japan also dominate the market for plain wire, imports from Japan apparently exceeding those from the United States in value and being about twice as great in volume. Japanese prices on nails and plain wire were 20 to 25 percent under American prices during most of the year, American and European steel companies being unable to compete in price on these products in spite of the fact that it was from these same steel companies that Japanese manufacturres bought most of their steel rods. At the end of the year, both European and Japanese prices increased to such an extent that they were not competitive with American prices, however.

The increase of about 50 percent in imports of tin plate is due mainly to the chance that large consignments happened to arrive at the beginning of one year rather than at the end of another. The consumption of tin plate is estimated to have increased some 15 to 20 percent, however.

About 95 percent of the volume and 80 percent of the value of cast iron pipes imported in 1936 came from the United States, the balance coming from Japan. The pipe from Japan is for the most part soil pipe, water pipe coming almost entirely from the United States. Of wrought iron pipe, 52 percent in quantity and 67 percent in value came from the United States, the balance coming mainly from Germany. Imports of steel pipe were 90 percent from the United States in volume and value. Some importers believe that the Customs figure must include a certain amount of steel pipe in the wrought iron pipe figures, as it is believed that steel pipe is imported in a larger way than iron pipe, the former being preferred by the mines.

With excellent prospects for continued activity in building and mining and with a general feeling of prosperity in the Islands, there seems no reason why imports of iron and steel products in 1937 should not at least equal those for 1936. American mills at the beginning of 1937 have an excellent chance of getting a considerably better proportion of the total, as Japanese and European prices on all iron and steel products were increased up to 50 percent, or even more, during December and prices on many items were higher than American prices at the end of the year. Demand was excellent and stocks very low.

MACHINERY

Imports of machinery were valued at ₱11,718,381 in 1936, according to Customs returns, an increase of 45 percent over the ₱8,097,705 in 1935. Imports from the United States are believed to have made up about 80 percent of the total, against 74 percent in 1935. This item includes office machines, sewing machines and tractors, as well as industrial machinery and parts. Imports of some of the principal items in 1935 and 1936 were as follows:

	1935		1936
	U. S. A.	Total	U. S. A.	Total
Mining machinery	₱1,558,034	₱1,698,347	₱1,767,114	₱1,982,171
Pumps and pumping machinery	247,052	292,881	396,259	419,153
Stationary and marine engines	296,997	814,092	320,049	977,052
Refrigerating machinery	142,303	147,060	84,681	84,773
Sawmill machinery	83,862	85,018	145,025	145,466

It will be observed that mining machinery imports increased about 17 percent and that 90 percent of the 1936 total came from the United States, against 92 percent in 1935. In each year, most of the balance was from Germany. Mining development promises to continue and a number of properties are expected to install mills in 1937. It may, therefore, be anticipated that imports of mining machinery, as well as other types of machinery used by the mines such as pumps, stationary engines, hoisting machinery etc., will not be reduced. The United States should continue to get most of the business, in view of the peference of mining engineers for American equipment.

Imports of pumps and pumping machinery increased 44 percent, due largely to mine purchases, and American companies again got about 95 percent of the business. Imports of stationary and marine engines increased about 20 percent, also due mainly to mining activity, although in the case of both pumps and diesel engines there was a substantial demand for irrigation purposes. Imports of stationary and marine engines from the United States declined from 37 percent of the total in 1935 a to 33 percent in 1936, while imports from Sweden fell from 33 percent to 20 percent. There was a notable increase in imports from Great Britain, which made up 25 percent of the total in 1936, against eight percent in 1935. This increase was due partly to the fact that an important mining development company did some financing in London in 1935 on terms which required a substantial amount of money to be spent in Great Britain.

Imports of refrigerating machinery were surprisingly small, being 43 percent below the 1935 figure, in spite of the large installation of air-conditioning machinery at the Manila Hotel and a number of small installations in offices and residences. It is possible that air-conditioning machinery is included in the Customs returns under some other heading.

Imports of sawmill machinery increased about 73 percent in 1936, as was to be expected in view of the considrable increase in the production of lumber. With lumber mills working to capacity at the end of the year, and with demand good in both export and domestic markets, a further increase in imports of sawmill machinery may be expectd in 1937. Imports of logging machinery, notably tractors, were also greatly improved. Both sawmill and logging machinery came almost entirely from the United States.

Agricultural Implements.—The demand for tractors improved considerably, imports totaling 123 in 1936 compared with 110 in 1935 and 68 in 1934. The value of tractor imports, approximately doubled in 1936, amounting to ₱531,717 compared with ₱269,518 in 1935; due to the fact that 1936 imports were mainly of large tractors for use in logging and in the mines. Imports of tractors were particularly heavy in December and prospects appear good for even better business in 1937.

Imports of other agricultural implements appear to have increased moderately in 1936 athough details are not available.

ELECTRICAL MACHINERY AND APPARATUS

Customs returns show imports under this heading to have totaled ₱5,830,861 in 1936, an increase of 35 percent over the ₱4,307,336 in 1935. The increase seems to have been pretty well distributed among the several items of electrical machinery and appliances, and the proportion from the United States is not believed to have fallen below the 86 percent achieved in 1935. Imports of some of the principal items were as follows:

	1935		1936
	U. S. A.	Total	U. S A.	Total
Incandescent bulbs and tubes	₱199,322	₱371,774	₱289,955	₱497,237
Electrical machinery and motors	675,169	753,662	798,804	939,297
Batteries	241,837	243,815	254,047	257,509
Electric refrigerators	201,406	201,469	419,731	420,505
Insulated wire	428,152	481,479	550,732	654,066

Imports of incandescent bulbs increased about 33 percent and imports from the United States increased a little more than that, the American proportion of the total being 58 percent in 1936 and 53 percent in 1935. Most of the balance came from Germany, the Osram lamp being well represented in the Philippines. The Phillips lamp also seems fairly popular but imports from the Netherlands were surprisingly small, according to records in the Bureau of Customs, amounting to only four percent of the total. There were no changes in prices during the year, American, German and Dutch lamps all selling at about the same price. Imports of cheap Japanese lamps continued to decline, amounting to ten percent of the total in 1936 against 15 percent in 1935 and about 20 per cent in 1934.

Imports of electrical machinery and motors increased about 25 percent but imports from the United States increased only 18 percent due to increased competition from Sweden. The American proportion of the total was only 85 percent, against 90 per cent in 1935. Swedish electrical machinery is very ably represented and has been sold at a price 10 to 15 percent under the American price, but Swedish manufacturers were unable to promise prompt delivery at the end of the year, being booked to capacity for several months ahead, and prices increased.

Imports of batteries, not including flashlight batteries, increased only slightly, in spite of the increase in the use of automobiles and in installations of electrical equipment. The United States continued to get practically all of the business.

Imports of electric refrigerators increased more than 100 percent, with sales increasing in about the same proportion, due mainly to stock market profits and improved revenue from agricultural products. Demand for electric refrigerators was good at the end of the year and prospects for 1937 appear encouraging.

Imports of insulated wires increased about 35 percent, the American share being about 89 percent of the total in 1936, compared with 85 percent the previous year. The chief competition came from Canada, imports of cheap insulated wires from Japan amounting to only about three percent of the total.

Sales of radio receiving sets apparently improved, new registrations totaling 5,745 sets in 1936, compared with 4,504 sets in 1935. Cancellations totaled 1,283 in 1936, against 1,202 in 1935. Sales might perhaps have been greater had it not been for the uncertainty of radio broadcasting. An Act passed by the National Assembly provided for a Radio Advisory Board to censor radio programs and to study the possibility of nationalizing radio broadcasting. Meanwhile, the three privately-owned broadcasting companies, KZRM, KZEG and KZIB, are continuing to broadcast regular programs consisting of local talent, news items, stock market quotations, electric transcriptions and phonograph records. The volume of radio advertising appeared to be somewhat increased in 1936.

Electric power production increased in 1936, the principal company producing 128,039,606 KWH in 1936, against 114,179,000 KWH in 1935, an increase of 12 percent. It did not add subsequently to its transmission or generating facilities during the year. Smaller plants operating throughout the Islands and for the most part using diesel power are estimated to have produced in the neighborhood of 12,000,000 KWH in 1936, or probably a slight increase over 1935. The National Assembly passed an Act appropriating ₱250,000 for organization expenses and capital of a National Power Corporation, which is authorized to make surveys of power sites in the Philippines and to borrow up to ₱20,000,000 for the purpose of developing and operating hydro-electric power plants. Preliminary surveys have indicated that considerable amounts of power could be developed at sites in Lanao, Tayabas and Central Luzon, but so far no study has been given to the problem of marketing.

Prospects appear good for 1937. Mines should continue to be large buyers of electrical machinery and equipment and construction activities should offer a good market for wiring fixtures, etc. The formation of a number of new mining and brokerage companies and the installation of ticker systems greatly increased the demand for telephone apparatus in 1936 and it is expected to continue in 1937. The market for flashlights, flashlight batteries and incandescent bulbs should be very good in 1937, if present prices for Philippine products continue.

PETROLEUM PRODUCTS

Imports of petroleum products, according to the Bureau of Customs, were valued at ₱14,425,394 in 1936, or about three percent less than in 1935. Imports of gasoline, of which about 98 percent comes from the United States, totaled only 145,078,000 liters in the whole of 1936, compared with 158,731,000 liters in 1935, an eight percent decrease. Imports of kerosene, imported entirely from the United States, totaled 78,304,000 liters in 1936, against 87,440,000 liters in 1935, a ten percent decrease, though value increased two percent, apparently due to higher invoice valuation. Imports of lubricating oil totaled 11,669,000 liters, 85 percent American, compared with 11,221,000 liters, 83 percent American, in 1935. Crude oil imports talaled 341,299,000 letter, 39 percent American in 1936, against 358,084,000 liters, 42 percent American, in 1935.

Customs returns represent liquidation of entries rather than actual imports and these figures do not appear to include exceptionally heavy imports of gasoline and lubricating oil in December, 1936, in anticipation of an increase in the tax on those products. Actually, imports of all classes of petroleum products appear to have been substantially higher in 1936 than in 1935, gasoline imports totaling 42,913,000 gallons, according to an examination of manifests against 40,576,494 gallons in 1935; kerosene imports 20,778,000 gallons against 20,625,000; lubricating oil 3,489,000 gallons against 3,457,000 diesel oil 29,942,000 gallons against 26,094,000; fuel oil 54,102,000 gallons against 49,821,000. Imports will probably not decreased in 1937, though stocks of gasoline and lubricating oil were rather large at the beginning of the year.

Sales of gasoline are estimated at 41,000,000 gallons in 1936, an 18 percent increase over 1935. Sales of alcohol for motive power purposes totaled 51,563,000 proof liters in the first eleven months of 1936, an eight percent increase over the 1935 figure. The retail price of gasoline was reduced by two centavos a liter in March. It was increased by one centavo in November, anticipating an increase in the gasoline tax from four centavos a liter to five centavos, effective January 1, 1937. The tax increase is not expected to affect sales of gasoline, since production of alcohol, a competing product, is limited by the limitation on sugar. Alcohol production will probably increase 10 to 15 percent in 1937, due to the larger sugar crop, but sales of gasoline may also be expected to increase, unless a reduction in business should combine with the increase in gasoline and oil taxes and in registration fees to discourage bus and truck operators.

A bill introduced in the National Assembly, which would have required an admixture of 25 percent alcohol in all gasoline sold, was not favorably considered, legislators realizing that there is not enough alcohol produced in the country to meet such a requirement.

Kerosene sales are estimated at 22,500,000 gallons for 1936, an 18 percent increase over 1935. The increase was much greater than had been expected, the trend of kerosene sales being generally downward, due to the gradual spread of electricity. Electric power production increased substantially in 1936 in the Manila district, but there was no expansion in the provinces and the improved purchasing power encouraged larger sales of kerosene in areas not served by the electric power companies. It seems probable that sales will be at least as good in 1937.

Sales of bunker fuel oil are estimated at

Digitized by Google

213,000 long tons, compared with 221,945 long tons in 1935. The decrease is due to lower purchases by the Navy. Omitting Navy purchases, sales are estimated at 165,000 long tons in 1936, a 17 percent increase over 1935 sales.

Sales of diesel oil increased from 85,794 long tons in 1935 to 94,500 long tons in 1936. Omitting Navy purchases, sales totaled 90,000 long tons in 1936, an increase of about 13 percent over 1935 sales. The increase was mainly in sales to the mines. Sales for marine use were somewhat better than in 1935, while sales to electric light and power companies were about the same.

Lubricating oil sales are estimated at 3,650,000 gallons in 1936, an increase of about 14 percent. A slightly better average grade of oil was imported in 1936, due to the large purchases by the mines, which generally require oil of good quality, and to the fact that independent importers, while offering about as much competition as in 1935, brought in a greater proportion of standard brands of oil. Sales of grease are estimated at 1,750,000 pounds, a 14 percent increase over 1935. The demand for lubricating oil and grease should be at least equally good in 1937. Lubricating oil prices were generally increased one centavo a liter at the end of the year, due to the increase in the tax from three centavos a liter to four centavos.

PAPER AND MANUFACTURES

Imports of unprinted paper increased about eight percent in 1936, wrapping paper and a variety of other types of paper being imported in greater volume and value. The total value of unprinted paper imports in 1936 was ₱4,531,659. Imports of printing paper, the largest single item, were apparently greater in volume in 1936 than in 1935, but were about eight percent lower in value, amounting only to ₱1,381,286, against ₱1,502,172 in 1935. Imports of printing paper from the United States were valued at ₱133,000 less than in 1935 and made up about 60 percent of total imports, against 66 percent in 1935. The lower value of printing paper imports in 1936 is due to the very low prices which ruled throughout most of the year. Prices on Canadian and European newsprint increased nearly 30 percent in the last two months of the year, however. American prices increased about 15 percent and were competitive with European prices at the end of the year. Not a great deal of business was being placed, however, possibly due to the shortage of ships and to the fact that American mills, busy on domestic orders, were unable to promise early deliveries. Stocks were fairly large at the end of the year but will probably be reduced in the first half of 1937. Imports in 1937 are expected to be lower in volume but as great or greater in value.

Imports of wrapping paper increased about 23 percent in value in 1936, amounting to ₱855,515 against ₱692,863 in 1935. The United States was again the leading source of supply, with 73 percent of the total in 1936. Imports of wrapping paper should increase in 1937, with a greater volume of trade expected.

Imports of paper bags increased about 15 percent in 1936, in spite of the fact that a local company started making paper bags during the year. Imports are expected to be somewhat reduced in 1937 and will be made up mainly of cement bags. The increase in 1936 was entirely in imports of cement bags, from Japan. The American share in 1936 was about 75 percent of total bag imports.

Imports of writing paper fell off in 1936, mounting to ₱101,200, or about ten percent less than in 1935. Imports from the United States fell off about 16 percent and made up 80 percent of the total in 1936, against nearly 90 percent in 1935. Competition was from Germany and China.

Imports of printed matter were reduced about 20 percent in 1936, amounting to ₱1,910,988. The decline was due principally to lower imports of textbooks, which were imported to the value of only ₱726,841 in 1936, against ₱1,309,103 in 1935. The 1936 figure is a normal one, imports having been unusually large in 1935 due to the purchase by the Government of textbooks to the value of ₱700,000 for rental to students in the more advanced grades and high schools. An Act passed by the National Assembly appropriates ₱570,000 for the purchase of necessary equipment for the use of the Bureau of Printing to use in printing elementary textbooks. The Act also provides that textbooks for use in the elementary grades of public schools must be printed either by the Bureau of Printing or by private printers in the Philippines from manuscripts and materials which shall be furnished and prepared by the Bureau of Education. There will doubtless be some delay in putting this law into effect, as it will take some time to purchase and install the necessary presses and other equipment and probably even more time to prepare the textbooks, but it appears probable that it will ultimately result in a reduction in imports of American textbooks.

CHEMICAL PRODUCTS

Fertilizers.—Imports of fertilizers increased moderately, amounting to ₱4,271,720, or 18 percent better than the 1935 figure. Imports increased from both Germany and the United States, with the former showing a more marked improvement. The United States supplied 61 percent of the 1936 total against 64 percent in 1935. With sugar production more or less fixed, fertilizer imports will probably continue at about the same rate. The American share has been exceptionally good in the past two years as a result of a campaign of sugar centrals and the Federation of Sugar Planters to increase purchases of American supplies in return for the advantages given by the United States to Philippine sugar. With German prices consistently about five percent lower than American prices, however, the German share of the total is likely to gain at the expense of the American. Imports from Japan have been small and appear unlikely to increase.

Chemicals, Drugs, Dyes and Medicines.—Imports under this heading were about six percent greater than in 1935 due largely to mining activity. A further moderate increase may be expected in 1937. The American share continues in the neighborhood of 70 percent, with competition chiefly in chemicals from Canada, Germany and Japan.

Paints, Pigments and Varnishes.—Imports amounted to ₱1,778,860 in 1936, a 35 percent increase over 1935, in spite of the increase in domestic manufacture. Imports apparently came about 75 percent from the United States, the balance being mainly zinc oxide from Great Britain and cheap paints from China and Japan. Building activity is expected to continue to increase, offering a good market for paints in 1937.

Perfumery Cosmetics and Toilet Preparations.—These were imported to the value of ₱1,499,133 in 1936, a 14 percent increase over the same period of 1935. Imports were apparently about 80 percent from the United States, the balance being made up mainly of perfumes from France and Spain.

Three companies have been organized to manufacture perfumes, lotions and scented soap in the Philippines, from French essences, and they are all expecting to start production in 1937. It is believed that this domestic competition will affect imports from France and Spain rather than from the United States.

TOBACCO AND PRODUCTS

Customs figures indicate total value of cigarette imports in 1936 at only ₱5,342,460, a 13 percent decrease from the ₱6,153,235 in 1935. Customs figures are based on liquidation of entries rather than on actual arrival of goods and appear in this instance to be misleading. Excise tax returns indicate that sales of imported cigarettes increased about 25 percent over 1935 and the principal importers believe that imports increased in about the same proportion. The preference for American cigarettes has been growing steadily in recent years, 1935 sales having shown a 16.97 percent increase over the previous year. Sales of domestic cigarettes, on the other hand, have declined or at best held even. Some local companies started during the year to manufacture American-type cigarettes from tobacco imported from the United States, but the preference continues for the brands widely advertised in American and local magazines and papers.

Imports of other tobacco products amounted to ₱1,788,400 in 1936, a 25 percent increase over the ₱1,347,324 imported in 1935. The increase was chiefly in chewing and smoking tobacco.

LEATHER

Business was fair in the first eight months of 1936, with no particular features. Prices were unusually steady. In the last four months of the year, business was excellent, with the demand increasing more than seasonally. Rising prices in the United States, particularly on the lower grades of upper leather, the grades chiefly demanded in the Philippines, were reflected in rapidly rising prices in the local market during the last four months of the year. These price increases were accepted by the factories and by the hand-shoemakers of Marikina, who are responsible for more than half the shoe production of the Islands, and the market became definitely a seller's market toward the end of the year, when stocks were reduced and replacement became difficult.

Moderate imports of low-grade bellies and shoulders from Australia continued, entirely for the use of the Marikina shoemakers. Occasional imports of black upper leather from Japan, though small, caused some disquiet in the market during the first three quarters of the year, due to the low prices at which this leather was sold. It does not appear to have been very satisfactory, due mainly to the fact that it will not take a high polish. Imports from the United States constituted well over 90 percent of total leather imports in 1936.

It appears probable that demand will continue good and prices firm during the first quarter of 1937. The usual quiet season may then be expected to ensue, with a likelihood of somewhat easier prices if the shipping strike has been settled by that time.

Production of leather in the Philippines, by two fairly modern tanneries and a number of small tanners doing only local business, was apparently about the same as the previous year, despite Army contracts. The principal trouble of the two domestic tanneries is in getting a regular supply of suitable hides, not too badly cut, from the slaughterhouses. There was, nevertheless, a moderate exportation of carabao hides to Japan and other Asiatic markets in 1936.

Imports of leather and leather products in 1936 totaled ₱2,518,656 in value, according to the Bureau of Customs, an 18 percent increase over last year. This is chiefly upper and sole leather and cut soles for the use of shoemakers, although a few ready-made shoes and other leather products are imported. The increase is due mainly to greater volume, although average price was a little better, particularly in the last half of the year.

Factory production of shoes increased markedly in 1936, particularly in the last half of the year, which some factories consider the best six months period for several years. The increasing cost of leather necessitated a general increase of 10 to 20 percent in shoe prices on January 1, 1937, but with most native products bringing good prices and with a feeling of optimism throughout the Islands, the price increase is not expected to meet with great resistance from buyers. The volume of orders at the beginning of January indicates, in fact, that the coming year will be an exceptionally good one.

TRANSPORTATION AND COMMUNICATIONS

Railways.—Railroad carloadings did not show the expected improvement in 1936, in spite of a considerably heavier sugar crop. Freight carloadings on the Manila Railroad Company totaled only 1,267,180 tons in the 52 weeks ended December 26, 1936, a very slight decline from the 1,278,306 tons loaded in the same period of 1935. There was only a moderate increase in the amount of sugar carried and sugar cane actually showed a decrease, due presumably to the increasing tendency to use trucks. Rice and palay movement was reduced due to the short crop and there was also a considerable reduction in copra and coconuts. Lumber and timber movement was also substantially reduced, in spite of the considerable increase in production and exports. This appears to be due to a greater tendency to ship by water. Movement of mineral products, manufactured goods and L.C.L. shipments was considerably better in 1936 than in 1935.

No figures are available to show the movement of freight on the Philippine Railway Company, but it would appear from preliminary financial returns that there was no improvement over 1935.

Railroad carloadings are not a particularly good index of freight movement, as the railroads serve relatively limited areas, by far the greater part being served by boats and trucks.

Prospects, for 1937 appear fairly good. Movement of most commodities may be expected to be a little better than in 1936 and the increase in the tax on gasoline and lubricating oil and in motor vehicle registration fees may improve the competitive position of the railways by forcing an increase in truck transportation rates.

The railroads built no considerable extensions during the year and purchases were confined to essential replacements. The Manila Railroad is authorized by an Act passed by the National Assembly to abandon some little-used lines in Southern Luzon and extend its Southern line to Legaspi, which should improve the earnings of its Southern lines. The Assembly appropriate ₱300,000 for the purchase of Manila Railroad Company stock, the proceeds to be used toward this extension.

Another Act passed by the National Assembly authorizes the Manila Railroad Company to construct and operate toll bridges, toll viaducts and toll tunnels.

The fate of the Philippine Railway Company remains in doubt. Bonds totaling about ₱17,000,000 become due in 1937 and no provision has been made for meeting them. The Philippine Government has been paying interest on the bonds but does not guarantee repayment of the principal and shows no present inclination to purchase the bonds and operate the lines. There seems little prospect that the railway will ever be a paying proposition but some compromise may be worked out whereby it will be permitted to continue in operation.

Shipping.—Export cargoes totaled 2,692,095 tons in 1936, according to the Associated Steamship Lines. This compares with 1,917,398 tons in 1935. The increase is due mainly to sugar, but there was also a substantial increase in most other export products, notably logs and lumber, coconut products and minerals. Of the 1936 exports, 872,728 tons went to Oriental ports, 431,028 tons to the American Pacific Coast, 1,107,827 tons to the Atlantic Coast and 252,383 tons to Europe. American boasts carried 545,688 tons, or 20 percent of the total, compared with 28 percent in 1935.

Import tonnage was apparently much better than in 1935 and inter-island traffic was very good.

Passenger traffic was excellent throughout the year and hotel facilities in Manila were strained at all times, excepting during the rainy season. An exceptionally heavy ingress of visitors is expected in the first quarter of 1937, due to the Eucharistic Congress and difficulty is anticipated in accommodating them. The Manila Hotel is building an annex with 68 air-conditioned bedrooms and a banquet room, which should be ready by about the end of the first quarter.

German and Italian steamship lines offered a very popular rapid service to Europe during the year, which provided some competition to American and Canadian lines operating on the Pacific Ocean.

Prospects for shipping in 1937 are difficult to forecast due to the exceptional situation at the end of the year, arising from the tie-up of American ships. A sudden increase in the demand for tonnage all over the world is believed an even more important factor in producing an extreme shortage of space available to Philippine shippers at the end of the year. It became definitely a buyers' market, with ship operators finding no difficulty in filling all the ships they could get hold of and following a natural tendency to prefer the classes of cargo carrying the best rates. Shipments of mineral ores to the United States have been suspended for that reason and sugar shippers are experiencing difficulty in getting adequate space. Assuming the settlement of complicating factors, it appears probable that cargo movements from the Philippines in 1937 will show a fairly good increase over 1936.

Motor Transportation.—Although no figures are available, bus and truck transportation companies appear to have had a successful year in 1936. Transportation companies have been active purchasers of trucks throughout most of the year. Increased difficulties are anticipated for 1937, when registration fees are increased nearly 50 percent and there is an increase as of January 1, 1937, from four to five centavos a liter in the tax on gasoline and from three to four centavos a liter in the tax on lubricating oil. Some of the weaker operators may find it impossible to pay the increased taxes, but it is believed that the larger companies will continue to operate at a profit.

Aviation.—Regular airmail service between San Francisco and Manila was provided during 1936. Beginning with October 27, passengers were also carried. This method of traveling has proved very popular, particularly since the shipping strike reduced the number of boats available, and the Clippers have for the most part been filled close to capacity. It remains to be seen whether trans-Pacific air travel will prove as popular when the novelty has worn off and when adequate accommodation is available on ships, but it will always be a great convenience to business men to whom time is of paramount importance. The company established a temporary base at Cavite early in the year and is planning a permanent base in Manila Harbor.

The Philippine Aerial Taxi Company continued to operate on a schedule of seven trips a week between Manila and Baguio and increased its schedule to Paracale from one plane a week to five. Several extra flights were required t accommodate passengers. The company again operated without accident.

The Iloilo,Negros Air Express Company continued its semi-weekly service between Manila and Davao until the end of May when it had its first accident, a tri-motored plane being forced to land in the water near Panay. It was impossible to recover the plane and the mystery why all three motors stopped at almost the same time was not solved. There were no serious injuries to passengers or crew. The Manila-Davao and Manila-Iloilo services were suspended early in September but will be resumed about the end of February, 1937, with a new 16-passenger amphibian plane of American make.

Due to the suspension of the Manila-Iloilo and Manila-Davao services, the number of passengers carried on scheduled flights was somewhat reduced, amounting to 17,548, compared with 19,075 in 1935. The number of hours flown and miles covered on scheduled flights, nevertheless, increased to 4,243.45 and 489,481, respectively, in 1936, compared with 2,969 and 344,686 in 1935. In addition, there were 1,295 passengers carried, 180,219 miles covered and 2,014 hours flown on non-scheduled flights. The two operating companies carried 3,860 kilos of mail, compared with 2,431 kilos in 1935.

The number of privately-owned planes in operation in the Philippines at the end of 1936 was 19. There were 20 licensed commercial pilots, 25 licensed pilots and 73 licensed student pilots.

A bill passed by the National Assembly authorizes the Director of Posts to enter contracts for the transportation of mail by air between points within the Philippines and between the Philippines and foreign countries. The base rate may not exceed 75 centavos per airplane mile for transporting a mail load not exceeding 200 pounds. Another bill provides for the creation of a Bureau of Civil Aviation, under the Department of Public Works and Communications. Another requires airplane transportation companies to install two-way radios for all scheduled flights and for all flights lasting over one hour.

The 1937 Public Works Bill contains an appropriation of ₱300,000 for the development of a national airport. There is a plan under consideration to fill in ground for a landing field in the neighborhood of Fort San Antonio Abad in Manila Harbor, with a seaplane basin adjacent to it. Pan American Airways would be prepared to construct their own base in connection with the project. There seems to be some difficulty in connection with the plan, however, and no decision has yet been made. A sum of ₱200,000 available from the 1936 Public Works Appropriation might have been available for an airport but had not been released by the end of the year and was, therefore, automatically turned back to the General Fund.

EXCHANGE

Opening the year sellers at 200.50 and buyers at 200, the market for dollars was easy during the first quarter due to sugar shipments and to the shortage of cash in Manila. This cash situation was alleviated in April and dollars were firm during the second quarter, falling off a little toward the end of June due to demand for pesos for mid-year cash requirements. A steady market was expected during the last half of the year, as most of the sugar had been sold by mid-year. Renewed weakness developed in August, however, and continued throughout the balance of the year. At the end of the year, sellers of T. T. were satisfied with 198.75 and buyers were offering no better than 198.25, the treasury's buying price. The dollar reached its high point in May, when sellers were asking 201 and buyers offering 200.50, but the average of both selling and buying quotations for the year was below par.

The relative weakness in the dollar during the last half of 1936, a period in which sugar exports were moderate, was apparently due mainly to the fact that banks were amply supplied with dollars as a result of the very remunerative export trade in sugar and other Philippine products in the first half of the year and did not wish to increase their balances in the United States, where they could obtain only very low interest rates. Exports of products other than sugar, including gold bullion, continued excellent and increasing throughout the last half of the year and the favorable balance of trade for the year reached record proportions. The supply of dollars apparently exceeded demand at all times during the last half of the year, in spite of the fact that imports were also good during most of the period. Toward the end of the year, however, imports fell off due to the shipping strike and the weakness in exchange rates was accentuated.

Another factor was the heavy increase in bank deposits, Philippine law requiring that foreign banks normally keep in the Philippines assets equal to 90 percent of their total deposits. The retention in the Philippines of fairly large remittances that would normally have been made to Spain and other countries and the rather considerable imports of capital, chiefly from Hongkong and China, for investment in Philippine mining shares, were also factors in the strength of the peso.

With a large supply of dollars becoming available from sugar shipments during the next few months, it appears almost certain that the buying quotation for dollars will remain considerably below par and probably not much above the treasury's buying point of 198.25.

BANKING AND CREDIT

The consolidated statement of Manila banks as of December 26, 1936, showed an increase for the year of ₱75,000,000 in total resources. Investments increased ₱17,000,000, but the increase was apparently due mainly to contracts for foreign exchange. Cash declined moderately in the first quarter of the year, during the sugar milling season, and increased substantially in the second quarter, as returns from exports were received. There was little change during the balance of the year, until December, when there was an increase of about ₱3,000,000, due partly to cashing of war veterans bonus bonds. The net cash increase for the year was about ₱12,000,000. Loans and discounts increased from ₱39,000,000 at the beginning of the year to ₱51,000,000 at the end of the first quarter, the sugar harvesting season. They remained in the neighborhood of ₱52,000,000 during the balance of the year, increasing to ₱54,500,000 with the start of the new sugar season in December, a net gain of ₱15,000,000 for the year. Overdrafts were steady at ₱55,000,000 during the first quarter and declined to ₱48,000,000 at mid-year, proceeds of sugar sales apparently being reflected in reduced overdrafts rather than loans and discounts. Overdrafts increased steadily during the last half of the year due to stock market activities, reaching a high of ₱68,000,000 in November and declining slightly in December. The net increase for the year was ₱11,000,000.

The most striking increase was in demand deposits, which went from ₱55,000,000 at the beginning of the year and ₱52,000,000 at the end of January to ₱104,000,000 at the end of October, falling off slightly during the balance of the year for a net gain of ₱47,000,000. The increase in demand deposits during the first half-year appears to have been due partly to proceeds of sugar sales and during the last half-year, largely to the spectacular increase in mining share quotations. General prosperity was a factor, however, throughout the year. The net working capital of foreign banks fell from ₱10,000,000 at the beginning of the year to a minus quantity of ₱4,000,000 at mid-year, when credit balances from sugar sales had been built up at head offices, but increased in the last quarter to ₱12,000,000 as funds were required for the new sugar season.

Consolidated figures for Manila banks as of December 28, 1935, and December 26, 1936, are as follows:

	Thousands of Pesos
	Dec. 28 1935	Dec. 26 1936
Total resources	251,959	325,786
Investments	59,950	77,483
Cash on hand	24,721	36,580
Loans and discounts	39,265	54,511
Overdrafts	55,029	66,117
Demand deposits	55,181	102,015
Savings deposits	40,420	35,614
Time deposits	46,811	58,226
Net amount due from banks, agencies and branches in the Philippines	8,773	17,149
Net amount due from other (foreign) banks	29,051	33,910
Net amount due from Philippine branches to foreign banks	10,349	11,960
Average weekly debits to individual accounts	23,712	39,628
Total net circulation	117,274	138,990
Total Government reserves	154,826	176,544

Debits to individual accounts were consistently ahead of 1935 and during some months, when stock market activity was at its height, were considerably more than double the figure for the corresponding month of the previous year. The weekly average for the year was about ₱39,600,000 in 1936, against ₱23,700,000 in 1935. The weekly average was a little under ₱30,000,000 for the first half-year, but increased suddenly between early July and the end of October, falling off during the last two months of the year. The weekly average for the last six months was ₱46,500,000. The very striking increase was due mainly to stock market activity, but partly to general prosperity.

Bank clearings, available for domestic banks only, ran about 25 percent ahead of the previous year during the first half of 1936, but were considerably more than double the previous year's figures for the last half, the total for the year amounting to ₱377,000,000, or 77 percent more than in 1935. Branches of foreign banks, which do the largest part of the banking business in the Philippines, are not members of the Clearing Association.

Circulation increased from ₱117,274,000 at the beginning of the year to ₱124,500,000 at the end of March, due largely to sugar fenefit payments in March. The figure remained in the neighborhood of ₱125,000,000 during the second and third quarters and increased to ₱138,990,000 at the end of the year, a seasonal increase accentuated by the cashing of war veterans bonus bonds and by the general prosperity. The net increase in circulation for the year was nearly ₱22,000,000, which followed an increase of ₱15,000,000 in 1935.

There was no general decrease in interest rates on deposits or loans, despite the continued excess of cash and the comparative lack of demand for loans and overdrafts. Demand deposits were not particularly welcomed, since banks have to pay a three-quarter percent tax on deposits, and no interest was paid on demand deposits. There was some switch from savings to time depostis during the year as a result of the lower interest rate on the former. Interest rates on loans remained at seven to nine percent on domestic loans and five to six percent on letter-or-credit and trust receipt loans, with export bills discounted at onequarter percent per month.

Despite the shortage of revenue producing assets, most of the banks appear to have operated at a profit in 1936. The Philippine National Bank made a profit of ₱2,700,000, of which about ₱2,000,000 represented profit from operations, the balance being payment of principal and interest on debts which had been written off. The profit from operations was about ₱100,000 better than the previous year. Loans to sugar centrals, which were written off several years ago which have since proved to be good, were written up to their face value, increasing the bank's assets by about ₱6,685,000. That amount was turned over to the Government along with ₱2,023,000, representing three-fourths of the year's profit, and approximately

Judge Corpus resigned as President of the Bank early in the year and was replaced by Vicente Carmona, formerly Under-Secretary of Finance. The Board of Directors, appointed at the same time, is made up entirely of Government representatives, neither American nor Filipino business men being included. President Quezon, in his message to the Directors, pointed out that the Bank should play an important part in the execution of plans designed to build up the national economy in preparation for independence. This would involve aid in the promotion and financing of new enterprises and advice to clients contemplating new ventures. A careful study should, he indicated, be made of the feasibility of improving credit facilities to small merchants and farmers and thus improving social conditions and alleviating the evils of usury. The Directors should, in short, consider loans and investments from the broader viewpoint of social and economic advantage, as well as from the strictly banking viewpoint, but without departing from sound banking practices.

The Philippine National Bank opened a new department during the year for the purchase and sale of Philippine Government bonds, hoping to create a market for those bons in the Philippines. The new department did a moderate business which might have been greater had it not been for the diversion afforded by the exceptional activity in the stock market.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANK

There were 650 first-class postal savings bank offices and 345 second-class offices in operation at the end of 1936, an increase of eight first-class offices and one second-class office during the year. Plans are being made at the end of the year to have a post office and a postal savings bank in every municipality in the Islands, or a total of 1,003. There were 35,838 new accounts opened in 1936 and 21,314 accounts closed, increasing the total number of outstanding accounts to 335,451. Deposits totaled ₱11,806,891, or an average of ₱35.19 per depositor at the end of 1936, against ₱10,619,340, an average of ₱32.09 at the end of 1935. This increase in deposits is considered a very good showing, particularly in view of the fact that there were several withdrawals of deposits, apparently for stock market speculation.

The income of the bank is given as ₱428,970 for 1936 and expenditures at ₱552,514, an apparent loss of ₱23,544 from operation. Expenditures include accrued interest credited to savings accounts in the amount of ₱329,627, while income does not include accrued interest receivable, which is estimated conservatively at ₱290,000. It is believed, therefore, that the final figures will show a net profit of at least ₱166,455, incresing the net surplus of the Postal Savings Bank a ₱1,659,981.

GOVERNMENT COMPANIES

The Government investment in railways again proved unprofitable. The Manila Railroad Company, entirely government-owned, will apparently show a net loss in the neighborhood of ₱1,500,000, against ₱1,840,000 in 1935. The moderate improvement is due mainly to reduced interest charges, as a result of retirement of ₱16,340,000 of bonds carrying interest charges of over 6½ percent, including exchange, through ₱13,500,000 of loans, bearing a low interest rate, from the Government and the Philippine National Bank. Railway operating revenues did not increase, despite increased sugar movement and efforts to meet motor competition by decreasing rates. A better showing is hoped for in 1937. It is possible that the increase in gasoline tax and motor vehicle registration fees may impove the competitive position of the railways.

The Philippine Railway Company was again unable to meet bond interest charges and the Government, which gurantees interest on the bonds, had to contribute about ₱500,000 on that account. The bonds, due July 1, 1937, and totaling about ₱17,000,000, are not guaranteed as to principal and no indication has been given as to what action will be taken on them.

The Philippine National Bank showed a net profit, after taxes, of ₱2,697,000, of which about ₱2,000,000 was operating profit, the balance recoveries from debts written off. In 1935, the net profit was ₱3,966,000, but about half of that was recoveries from debts written off. The reason for the lower amount of recoveries in 1936 was the fact that the balance outstanding of loans to sugar centrals, which were written off some years ago, was reinstated at full face value, the amount of the write-up being paid to the Government. Hiden assets of the Bank still include shares of sugar centrals carried at ₱53,000 and worth nearly ₱4,000,000 at present values, and a few debts carried at ₱1.00, from which some recoveries may be made. In the main, however, the Bank will have to rely on operating revenue in the future and may be expected to show somewhat smaller profits for that reason. The Bank paid a total of about ₱9,950,000 to the Government in 1936, including ₱6,685,000 from the write-up of sugar central loans, ₱2,023,000 representing 75 percent of the net profit for the year and about ₱1,250,000 in taxes on income, capital, deposits and circulation.

The Cebu Portland Cement Company showed a profit of ₱450,000 for the first ten months of 1936, compared with ₱345,000 in the same period of 1935. The Manila Hotel had an excellent year and made a profit of ₱200,000, the best in its history. With its facilities considerably increased by an annex, which will be ready by March or April, 1937, it should show an increased profit in the coming year. The national Rice and Corn Corporation is estimated to have made a profit of better than 100 percent from its sale of imported rice. This is not available for dividends, but will be added to the company's capital and used to further its aim of stabilizing rice prices.

Several new Government companies or other organizations were formed during the year. Commonwealth Act No. 2, passed by the National Assembly at its first session, povided for a National Economic Council, evidencing a consciousness of the necessity for an organized study of the industrial needs and possibilities of the country, in preparation for ultimate independence. The National Development Company was reorganized as a public company and it is anticipated that its capital will be increased from time to time by Government purchases of its stock, as the desirability of expansion becomes evident and money becomes available. Its capital was thus increased by ₱1,000,000 during the year, the company adding another million pesos from its own surplus to form a subsidiary under the name of the National Rice and Corn Corporation. Plans call for further expansion from time to time to finance the organization of additional subsidiaries to take the lead in the development of new industries, such as cotton yarn and cloth manufacture, preservation of foodstuffs, iron and steel manufacture, etc.

A National Power Corporation was organized at the end of the year, with a capital of ₱250,000 appropriated by the National Assembly, to be used for expenses of organization. The company has the right to borrow up to ₱20,000,000 to finance the development and operation of hydro-electric power plants. Favorable preliminary reports have been made as to the possibility of developing water power sites in Tayabas, Lanao and Central Luzon, but so far less attention has apparently been given to the problems of marketing or using the power that may be produced.

Organization of a National Iron Company has been recommended by a committee appointed to study the subject. Attention to hydro-electric power and iron production is considered important from the standpoint of national defense, as well as econmic preparation for independence.

Other Government organizations formed during the year include a National Produce Exchange, to facilitate trading in agricultural products; a Radio Advisory Board, to censor radio programs and study ways and means for the nationalization of radio broadcasting; a Government Service Insurance System, to replace pension funds; a National Loan and Investment Board, to centralize management of various funds. The Philippine National Bank and the National Development Company were authorised to build and maintain warehouses for storage of tobacco and copra, the Bureau of Printing was given an appropriation of ₱570,000 to enable it to print elementary textbooks and the National Development Company was given an appropriation of ₱500,000 to stabilize the price of buntal fiber.

GOVERNMENT FINANCES

The Commonwealth Government started off under favorable financial auspices, its revenues in its first full year of existence showing a marked increase as a result of exceptionally prosperous business conditions. General Fund revenues totaled about ₱76,678,000 for the year (December estimated), compared with ₱65,000,000 in 1935. The 1936 figure includes repayment by the Philippine National Bank of old advances in the amount of ₱4,679,000, made possible by writing up assets previously written off and now clearly good, but does not include transfers of ₱7,579,000 from the Special and Bond Funds (specifically, from the Exchange Standard Fund). These accretions to the General Fund are reflected in large part in the item of ₱9,990,000, among the expenditures, representing a loan to the Manila Railroad Company to permit it to retire bonds. In 1935, repayments by the Philippine National Bank and transfers from the Special and Bond Funds were at the more nearly normal figures of ₱2,051,000 and ₱1,616,000.

Expenditures totaled about ₱71,000,000 in 1936, compared with ₱60,375,000 in 1935. The 1936 figure, however, includes ₱15,148,000 for investments and outlay, of which ₱9,990,000 was a loan to the Manila Railroad Company (mentioned above); ₱300,000 an investment in Manila Railroad Company stock to permit it to close up a gap in its Southern lines; ₱1,000,000 an investment in National Development Company stock for use in financing the National Rice and Corn Corporation; and ₱1,017,000 used for the purchase of government office buildings. Of the 1935 expenditures, only ₱3,360,000 represented investments and outlays.

On the basis of these preliminary figures, it appears that ordinary (recurrent) revenue was sufficient to balance total expenditures in 1936, including over ₱12,000,000 for investments. Adding non-recurrent revenues and transfers, there is a margin of around ₱12,044,000. The principal items of revenues and expenditures in 1935 and 1936 are as follows (December estimated for 1936):

	Revenues (in ₱1,000)
	1935	1936
Import duties	19,393	22,226
Excise taxes	12,017	13,427
License and business taxes	14,001	17,240
Income tax	4,727	4,472
Net from taxes (after ₱3,164,000 contribution to local governments)	49,689	57,237
Incidental revenue	4,455	5,590
Earnings and Credits	10,874	8,966
	65,018	71,793
Repayment of loans and advances	2,128	4,885
Transfers from Special and Bond Funds	1,616	7,579
Total	68,762	84,257

Digitized by Google

Incidental revenue is mainly from public forests and from United States internal revenue on cigars and liquors. Earnings and Credits is made up in 1936 entirely of earnings of Government companies and functional activities of government, both of which show moderate increases over 1935. The 1935 figure also includes about ₱2,000,000 of prior year credits.

	Expenditures (in ₱1,000)
	1935	1936
Administrative	30,967	29,593
Contribution to local Governments	12,662	11,994
Pensions and gratuities	1,717	1,715
Outlays and investments	3,360	15,148
Public debt	8,499	8,257
Public works	2,991	4,290
Other charges	179	50
Total	60,375	71,047
Transferred to Special Fund	5,725	1,166

The 1936 increase in outlays and investments has already been explained. The increase in public works expenditures is largely in roads and bridges, for which ₱1,976,000 was spent from the General Fund in 1936, against ₱902,000 in 1935. Of the public Debt allotment in 1936, ₱2,402,000 went to the sinking fund, against ₱2,515,000 in 1935.

Encouraged by increasing revenues, the National Assembly, in its 1936 session, passed appropriation bills totaling about ₱78,000,000. Part of these provided for the funds to become available immediately, increasing the expenditures authorized for 1936, including fixed expenditures, to ₱73,928,000, part of which will be actually spent in 1937. Expenditures authorized for 1937 total ₱74,620,000, plus conditional appropriations of ₱6,260,000 (from the General Fund) for public works and ₱2,000,000 for a Waterworks Revolving Fund. Revenues are expected to reach at least ₱80,000,000, as new taxes and increased rates are expected to bring in ₱7,312,000, while increased efficiency in collection of present taxes is promised as a result of personnel increases in the Bureaus of Customs and Internal Revenue. This should permit most of the conditional public works appropriations to be released. The money for the water works fund may come from a bond issue.

The accumulated net surplus in the General Fund at the beginning of 1936 was ₱39,565,496. An estimated ₱12,045,511 excess of income over expenditures in 1936, including transfers to and from other Funds, increased the surplus to ₱51,611,007 at the end of 1936. Of that amount, ₱21,672,000 was encumbered, leaving an unencumbered surplus of ₱29,939,066 at the end of 1936. Encumbrances include appropriations made in previous years which did not revert to the General Fund, and appropriations in acts passed by the National Assembly in 1936 to become available immediately upon signature by the President. Not included, however, are special appropriations for 1937, passed by the National Assembly in its 1936 session. These amounted to ₱14,820,000 which, by accounting practice, became encumbrances immediately after December 31, automatically reducing the unencumbered surplus to ₱15,119,456. Actually, of course, the special appropriations for 1937 are expected to be covered from current revenues.

The Special Fund, made up of various revolving and continuing funds, amounted to ₱32,364,000 at the beginning of 1936. Income during the year totaled ₱19,051,000, or ₱2,967,000 more than in 1935. Expenditures, including transfers, totaled ₱17,121,000, or an increase of ₱464,000 over 1935. The balance at the end of the year was, therefore, ₱34,295,000.

Provincial and municipal revenues are understood to have shown a gratifying increase over 1935, but complete figures are not available. The Collector of Internal Revenue reports collections of ₱13,652,268 for provincial governments, compared with ₱10,041,174 in 1935, an increase of 35.96 percent. Internal Revenue collections for municipal governments are reported at ₱3,888,781, a 7.19 percent increase over 1935, while collections for the City of Manila totaled ₱549,273, a 2.19 percent decrease.

PUBLIC WORKS ACTIVITIES

Public Works activities include the following:

Roads and Bridges.—A total of ₱15,550,000 was made available for road and bridge construction between November 15, 1935 and December 31, 1936. This made possible the construction of 375 kilometers of first-class roads, 579 kilometers of second-class roads and 640 kilometers of third-class roads. A part of it was used for the maintenance of 9,544 kilometers of first-class roads, 5,402 kilometers of second-class roads, and 2,409 kilometers of third-class roads. There were 25 permanent bridges with an aggregate span of 2,629 meters completed during the period at a total cost of ₱1,773,000, chiefly from the Revolving Bridge Fund. The bridges were chiefly made with reinforced concrete spans or steel truss spans. The new bridges were nearly completed in Manila. One, the Ayala bridge, has one through riveted steel span 242 feet long and one steel span 200 feet long, with 30-feet roadway. The other, the Santa Ana bridge, has one 240-foot through riveted steel span and one 12-meter concrete girder approach span.

Particular attention was given to road construction in Mindanao, where ₱990,000 was made available for road work in Lanao, Cotabato and Davao. A second-class road from Iligan on the north coast of Mindanao, passing through Cotabato and going west along the south coast to Davao, with a total length of 412 kilometers, was practically completed by the end of the year.

It is expected that emphasis on road construction in Mindanao will continue during 1937.

Buildings.—There were 46 permanent buildings completed during the year at a total cost of ₱725,000. These were principally markets and schools. In addition, 128 barracks for the Army were constructed at a cost of about ₱2,000,000.

Port Works.—Work was done at 90 ports in the Philippines during 1936 and approximately ₱2,200,000 spent on construction, maintenance and improvement. The wharf at Legaspi has been completed to a length of 194 meters and the harbor is being dredged to a depth of 30 feet. A modern reinforced concrete wharf with steel frame cargo shed was completed at Iloilo.

Dredging was continued in Manila Harbor.

Waterworks.—Work was completed on seven projects serving a population of 22,200, at a total cost of ₱227,612. Work was newly started on 13 projects serving a population of 31,630, at an estimated cost of ₱415,000. There were at the end of the year 45 projects under construction estimated to cost ₱3,840,000 and to serve a population of 232,730.

A bill passed by the National Assembly during the year provides for an appropriation of ₱2,000,000, either from the General Fund or from the sale of bonds, to constitute a Revolving Fund for the construction of provincial and municipal waterworks systems.

The Zamboanga sewerage system was completed at a total cost of ₱186,512 and plans were completed for construction of the Iloilo sewerage system, which will be financed with the proceeds of a ₱350,000 bond issue. Plans are being made for a storm drain system costing around ₱110,000 at Silay, Occidental Negros.

The Public Works Act for 1937 appropriates ₱1,500,000 for river and sea protection projects, of which ₱550,000 is for two river control projects in Pampanga and Pangasinan, in Central Luzon. Floods from those two rivers have caused serious damage in the past two rainy seasons.

Artesian Wells.—Between November 15, 1935 and December 31, 1936, 71 successful wells were drilled capable of supplying 2,111 gallons per minute of potable water to a population of 105,569. Their cost was ₱99,000. The number of drilling machines was increased from 10 to 17 due to the necessity of providing sources of water supply for Army training camps.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION

Real estate sales reported in Manila totaled ₱18,557,530, the largest since 1919. The 1936 figure does not include three important transactions consummated during the year, including the sale of the National City Bank Building for over ₱2,000,000 and reported to involve altogether over ₱5,000,000. If they had been recorded, the total would have been over ₱23,000,000, or far ahead of any previous year.

Prices improved considerably, though they are still below predepression prices. Modern office buildings were filled to capacity by the unusual number of new companies formed, and rents were increased. The acute shortage of modern residential buildings continued. Some indication of the improvement in real estate in the past two years may be seen in the fact that the largest building and loan association, El Hogar Filipino, which had a deficit at the end of 1934, was able to declare a dividend on September 30, 1936.

New building permits totaled ₱6,140,330 for the year, or more than double the ₱2,773,950 for 1935. One large new office building was erected but for the most part the new building was residential, including an addition to the Manila Hotel, a smaller hotel and some apartment houses. There is still an acute shortage of better class residence and office space, particularly the former, and since real estate and building construction offer a convenient form of investment for idle funds, it is probable that real estate and construction activities will continue at the same or an increased rate in 1937.

INVESTMENTS

There were 460 companies incorporated in the Philippines in 1936, with ₱172,622,000 of authorized capital, of which ₱52,017,000 was subscribed and ₱18,989,000 paid up in cash and ₱3,092,000 in property. The controlling interest in 375 of the companies was Filipino and in 57, American. The companies organized by Filipinos had ₱43,896,000 of subscribed capital and ₱18,006,000 paid up, while companies incorporated by Americans had ₱7,148,000 of subscribed capital and ₱3,209,000 paid up. In 1935, there were 295 companies registered, of which 201 were Filipinos and 61 Americans. The authorized capital was ₱58,552,000, of which ₱22,227,000 was subscribed, ₱4,448,000 paid up in cash and ₱13,802,000 paid up in property. The Filipinos had ₱10,409,000 of the subscribed capital and ₱8,067,000 paid up, and the American companies had ₱6,220,000 subscribed and ₱5,051,000 paid up. Mining companies, investment companies, management and engineering companies and others allied with the mining industry made up the majority of the companies and about 90 percent of the subscribed capital. A number of investment companies were organized by wealthy sugar planters and owners of sugar centrals to manage the investments in mines and other enterprises.

There were 143 partnerships registered in 1936 with ₱6,462,000 of capital, all paid up. These include 36 Filipino partnerships with ₱1,111,000 capital, six American partnerships with ₱617,000 capital and 84 Chinese companies with ₱2,649,000. Several large brokerage firms were included. In 1935, there were 108 partnerships registered with ₱8,387,000 capital, including 24 Filipino partnerships with ₱329,000, eight American partnerships with ₱6,223,000 and 55 Chinese partnerships with ₱1,289,000.

Dealings on the Manila Stock Exchange were far more active in 1936 than in any previous year and a new exchange, the International Stock Exchange, was organized and started business in October, 1936. A third exchange, the Central Exchange of the Philippines, was organized but did not start trading until after the end of the year. There was a total of 1,074,868,290 shares traded in on the the two exchanges, of which 978,879,647 shares was on the Manila Stock Exchange and 95,988,643 shares on the International Stock Exchange.

compared with 183,524,353 shares in 1935 and 71,742,319 shares in 1934. The total value of the 1936 transactions was ₱445,122,866, against ₱45,539,516 in 1935 and ₱28,353,820 in 1934. The greatest monthly turn-over was in December when 180,537,079 shares were sold, but the value was only ₱47,343,719, or less than in any of the preceding five months. The greatest monthly value was in October when the value of shares traded in reached a total of ₱69,-339,424, but the total number of shares sold was only 158,189,780. The greatest daily volume was in December 29, when the turn-over was 15,123,835 shares.

The Swan, Culbertson and Fritz index, based on average value of stocks of 10 producing mines compared with average value in March, 1935, opened the year at 52, reached 125 by July 1 and attained a high point of 256 in October 22, averaging 245 in October.. It declined to 163 on November 11, shortly recovered to 218, again declined to 138 on December 2 and had recovered to 207 by December 31.

Tardemarks.—Applications for registration of trademarks totaled 398 in 1936, of which 245 were approved. In 1935, 321 applications were received and 170 approved. Registrations in 1936 included 93 for American applicants and 26 for Filipinos. In 1935, the respective figures were 69 and 19.

POLITICAL

The National Assembly in its first regular session passed a record number of bills, including several revenue bills increasing existing taxes and creating new ones. Among the taxes increased were the inheritance tax, income tax, firearm license fees, tax on mining production, tax on retail leaf tobacco dealers, taxes on gasoline and lubricating oil and motor vehicle license fees. New taxes include an amusement tax and a privilege tax on brokers and market vendors. The duty and excise tax on beer were increased, the former subject to American approval. A bill was passed giving the President of the Philippines the right to increase duties by a maximum of 400 percent and decrease them by a maximum of 75 percent, by executive order. This also awaits American approval. The Flag Law was amended by increasing the margin to 15 percent, in favor of Philippine—and American-made goods, and by further providing for a 15 percent margin of preference to Philippine and American distributing entities. Provision was made for a comprehensive census in 1937. Typhoon Signals

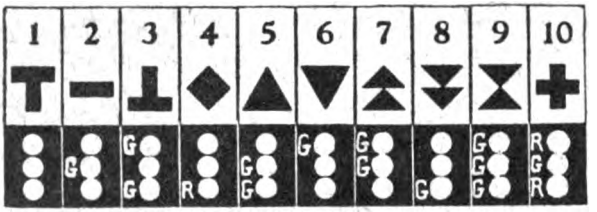
System Adopted by Hongkong and the Philippines, Effective After February 28, 1935



FIRST SIGNAL

Symbols.—Day symbol, a black T—Night symbol, three lights, white, white, white.
Meaning.—This signal may signify:
(a) Indications of a distant typhoon, the direction of whose movement is still unknown. The signal will be changed in case the typhoon becomes more threatening.
(b) Typhoon whose direction or distance is at present such, that it may pass off without seriously affecting the Archipelago.
(c) Depression of little importance, though it may develop later into a typhoon.
Use.—Frequently used in the Philippines; seldom, if ever, in Hongkong.
Relation to the old system.—It is the same as the old signal No. 1.
Precautions.—Vessels prepare to strengthen their moorings. Steamers prepare to light the fires. Small vessels, especially open launches, should not risk far from the coast, port, or steamers.

SECOND SIGNAL

Symbols.—Day symbol, a black horizontal bar—Night symbol, three lights, white, green, white.
Meaning.—Center of typhoon will pass or is passing to the north (northeast or north or northwest) at a considerable distance. Strong winds from the southwest quadrant (west to south), which may acquire considerable force and continue for several days.
Use.—Used both in Hongkong and in the Philippines.
Relation to the old system.—It is the same as the old signal No. 2.
Precautions.—Vessels strengthen their moorings and send down light yards and masts. Steamers light the fires and be ready to use engines on short notice. Dangerous for small vessels to be under way.

THIRD SIGNAL

Symbols.—Day symbol, a black inverted T—Night symbol, three lights, green, white, green.
Meaning.—Center of typhoon will pass or is passing to the south at a considerable distance. Strong winds from the east quadrant (northeast to southeast), which may acquire considerable force.
Use.—Used both in Hongkong and in the Philippines.
Relation to the old system.—It is the same as the old signal No. 3.
Precautions.—The same as for second signal.

FOURTH SIGNAL

Symbols.—Day symbol, a black diamond—Night symbol, three lights, white, white, red.
Meaning.—Typhoon dangerous, though the danger is not yet imminent. Look out for the next signal.
Use.—Used in the Philippines as a transitional signal; seldom, if ever, used in Hongkong.
Relation to the old system.—It is the same as the old signal No. 4.
Precautions.—Vessels strengthen their moorings as much as possible, and send down topsail yards and topmasts. Lower and secure all gear. Steamers must be ready to use engines in case of an emergency. Small vessels remain at their moorings.

FIFTH SIGNAL

Symbols.—Day symbol, black cone point upward—Night symbol, three lights, white, green, green.
Meaning.—Winds of gale force expected from the northwest (from north to west).
Use.—Used in Hongkong, but seldom, if ever, in the Philippines.
Relation to the old system.—It is a new signal.
Precautions.—The same as for fourth signal. Use steam to assist the anchors if necessary. No vessels under way while this signal is up.

SIXTH SIGNAL

Symbols.—Day symbol, a black cone point downward—Night symbol, three lights, green, white, white.
Meaning.—Gale expected from the SW (west to south)—Center of typhoon will pass or is passing to the north at a short distance. Strong gales from the northwest and especially from the southwest quadrants (north over west to south), which may reach hurricane force. In rare cases of typhoons coming from the China Sea and moving northeastward, the winds will veer from southeast over west to northwest.
Use.—Used both in Hongkong and in the Philippines.
Relation to the old system.—It corresponds to signal No. 5 in the old system.
Precautions.—The same as for fourth signal. Use steam to assist the anchors if necessary. No vessels under way while this signal is up.

SEVENTH SIGNAL

Symbols.—Day symbol, two cones point upward—Night symbol, three lights, green, green, white.
Meaning.—Winds of gale force may be expected from the northeast (from north to east).

EIGHTH SIGNAL

Symbols.—Day symbol, two cones point downward—Night symbol, three lights, white, white, green.
Meaning.—Gale expected from the southeast (east to south)—Center of typhoon will pass or is passing to the south at a short distance. Strong gales from the northeast and especially from the southeast quadrants (north over east to south), which may reach hurricane force. In rare cases of typhoons coming from the China Sea and moving northeastward, the winds will back from southeast over east to north.
Use.—Used both in Hongkong and in the Philippines.
Relation to the old system.—It corresponds to signal No. 6 in the old system.
Precautions.—The same as for fourth signal. Use steam to assist the anchors if necessary. No vessels under way while this signal is up.

NINTH SIGNAL

Symbols.—Day symbol, black hour-glass—Night symbol, three lights, green, green, green.
Meaning.—Gale is expected to increase.
Use.—Used in Hongkong only.
Relation to the old system.—It is a new signal.

TENTH SIGNAL

Symbols.—Day symbol, a black cross—Night symbol, three lights, red, green, red.
Meaning.—Center of typhoon will pass or is passing over or very near the place. It must be remembered that if the real center of the typhoon passes over the place, then after the absolute or relative lull, due to the actual passing of the center, the winds will suddenly change to a direction opposite the one from which they came before the calm; also that they may be fiercer than before.
Use.—Used both in Hongkong and in the Philippines.
Relation to the old system.—It corresponds to signal No. 7 in the old system.
Precautions.—The same as for fourth signal. Vessels must not enter the rivers or sail from them while this signal is up; it is forbidden also to move about in bancas or cascos.

REMARKS—1. The above typhoon signals are hoisted in accordance with advices from the Weather Bureau. Their meaning is the same wherever they are shown in the Archipelago.

2. While the precautions indicated above to be taken on board ships must to some degree be left to the judgment of the masters thereof, all masters of vessels are required to notify the collector of customs or the harbormaster if, while typhoon signals are displayed, any vessel fails to take suitable precautions for its safety, thus endangering other ships. (See Paragraph 181 of Customs Marine Circular No. 53, issued on January 1, 1913.)

3. The precautions to be taken on land can be inferred from those indicated for vessels. Secure movable or loosely fastened objects which present large surfaces to the wind. Doors and windows should be securely closed. Buildings of light materials should be braced on the sides opposite to the direction from which the wind blows, and the braces should be shifted according to the shifting of the wind, the latter especially when signal No. 10 is hoisted.

Philippine Money

Philippine Pesos, half pesos, and gold coins of the United States are unlimited legal tender in the Philippine Islands unless otherwise specifically provided by contract. The unit of value in the Philippine Islands is the theoretical gold peso, containing 12.9 grains of gold, nine-tenth fine, representing a gold value exactly equivalent to one-twentieth of the United States gold Eagle, or, in other words, equivalent to fifty cents United States Currency. Pesos, Philippine Currency, are designated by the following mark, (₱). The Philippine Currency System is that commonly known as the Gold-Exchange Standard. The parity is maintained by the sale of drafts in the Philippines by the Government on its Exchange Standard fund in New York and the sale of drafts in New York by the agent of the Philippine Government on the Government's Exchange Standard fund in Manila. The Government's rates of exchange are fixed, and represent as nearly as practicable the cost of shipping gold bars between New York and Manila. The Philippine Government, at its option, exchanges Philippine Currency for United States Currency and vice versa, charging for the gold coin a slight premium sufficient to pay transportation expenses. No charge is made for exchange in U. S. Currency for Philippine Currency in small amounts.

Philippine Silver Certificates while not legal tender, are exchangeable on demand for legal tender coin, are receivable in payment for all Government dues and may be held by banks as part of their legal reserve. United States paper currency though not legal tender is received by the Government and regularly passes current in the trade of the Islands.

The following denominations of Philippine Currency are in general circulation:
